Presenting courses in home nursing is one of the many services offered free of charge by the Marion County Chapter of the American Red Cross. Mrs. Frank M. Knapp is chairman of the home nursing committee and serving with her are Mrs. J. C. Ackerman, co-chairman, Mrs. Urton Anderson, R. N., Mrs. J. H. Harmon, Miss Mary Faye McMillan, Mrs. Gail Smith, Miss Inez Kraner, Mrs. Edward T. Huber, Mrs. Karl Bechtle, Mrs. Anne Sedelamier, Mrs. S. W. Kuhner and Mrs. Rayl B. Conyers.

During the last year, Mrs. Knapp states, 96 persons have enrolled in three classes. Instructors of these classes were Mrs. H. V. Taber, Mrs. Karl Bechtle, Mrs. Paul Lawrence and Miss Katherine Bausinger

Two New Classes

Two classes are under instruction at the present time, one at Martel with Miss Rita Hut as instructor, and one at Pleasant Township, with Miss Esther Mautz, instructor. One recently was formed and is now in progress at the Marion clinic.

The course is designed to help homemakers learn how to recognize evidences of illness, how to follow the doctor's orders, and how to give simple nursing care in the home. It also includes information on the care of babies and young children and offers suggestions regarding community resources which may be available for assistance in giving this care or in maintaining family health.

Care for Aged Provided

Last year more than 1,100 Red Cross chapters offered home nursing courses under the supervision of registered nurses. The course has a new phase which will be established in 1948. This will be in geriatrics, the study of care for the aged and infirm. Almost every family, sooner or later, faces the problem of caring for an aging and sometimes invalid relative in the home, and it is for this problem that the new phase of instruction is being established.

The following is one of a series of articles describing the services of the American Red Cross in connection with the 1948 nation-wide fund campaign now in progress. A goal of $75,000,000 has been set for the nation and Marion county's quota is $25,985. Of the quota to be raised in Marion city and county $14,105, or 54 per cent, will remain here and $11,880 will be forwarded to national headquarters.

TOUR SITE OF ATOMIC PLANT

AEC and Monsanto Co. Officials Return to Dayton After Visit Here.

Monsanto Chemical Co. and government Atomic Energy Commission representatives returned to Dayton Tuesday afternoon following the formal announcement made at a conference at the Hotel Harding of selection of a Scioto Ordnance Plant site for a new atomic energy research installation.

Details of the $5,000,000 installation were given at the conference attended by approximately 35 Marion businessmen civic leaders and representatives of professional groups.

The conference held at 10 a. m. was followed by a bus tour to the Scioto plant grounds to view the site of the new installation and a luncheon given by the company.

Dr. Carroll A. Hochwalt, vice president of Monsanto and director of the company's central research laboratory at Dayton presided at the conference and at the luncheon which was served in the presidential suite at the hotel.

Speaks at Luncheon

Dr. Hochwalt speaking briefly at the luncheon stated that Monsanto was looking forward to excellent relations with the community and was on record as interested in taking an active part in the Marion industrial family.

Robert T. Mason extended a welcome to Monsanto on behalf of the Marion Chamber of Commerce and Mayor Harry L. Dowler on behalf of the city. Work on the plant is expected to start within 30 days.

Kenneth A. Dunbar, Dayton area manager for the AEC, also spoke briefly pointing out the great responsibility of the government in conducting research in atomic energy. He expressed the desire of the atomic commission representatives to work in harmony with the public on a project so important to the nation that its control has to be kept by the federal government.

Among the points stressed repeatedly at the conference was the fact that the location of the atomic energy research installation here would not create a potential hazard to the community in respect to dangers of explosions, fire and contamination by radioactive elements.

Used in Laboratory Amounts

It was stressed that radioactive materials here would be used only in laboratory amounts. They constitute the same materials as are now used in hospitals, medical centers and other research laboratories throughout the nation. More than 2,000 shipments of these materials have been made from the Clinton laboratories at Oak Ridge, Tenn., to various centers in the United States, it was explained.

Possibility of radioactive elements escaping through waste disposal from the laboratory and entering the city sewer system was discounted by research officials. All residue from experiments is neutralized before release as waste material, it was explained. The question was raised by Mayor Dowler who pointed out that the sewage system at the Scioto Ordnance grounds is connected to the city system, with waste products traversing practically the length of the city before final treatment at the city disposal plant west of the city limits.

An interesting sidelight on Monsanto Co., the fourth largest in its field in the United States, was given yesterday as to how the company came to be named Monsanto. The name was selected by John Francis Queeny founder of the company in honor of his wife,

YOUNG IS GIVEN LIFE IN PRISON

Convicted Slayer of Woman Sentenced by Judge Smith Today.

At 10:40 a. m. this morning Edwin Demoine Young heard Common Pleas Judge Paul D. Smith pronounce the sentence ordering him imprisoned for life for the murder of Zora Hess Gerbes.

When asked by the court if he had anything to say before sentence was passed, Young said, "Not a thing."

Before pronouncing sentence the judge read portions of Sec. 12400 of the General Code of Ohio to the prisoner. This section is the one under which Young was sentenced.

Eligible for Parole

Although sentenced to life imprisonment he is eligible under the law for commutation of sentence to second degree murder by the governor at the end of 20 years, making him eligible for parole at that time.

Only court attaches, Prosecutor James Reed, defense attorney Paul D. Michael, and newsmen were present when sentence was pronounced.

Young maintained his phlegmatic attitude throughout the sentencing. Upon hearing the sentence he gave no indication of emotion. Immediately following sentence he was returned to the Marion county jail in custody of Sheriff Leroy Retterer and Deputy George Conroy.

Awaits Transfer

Young will remain in the county jail until completion of journal entries and commitment orders. He will then be taken to Ohio penitentiary in Columbus to begin his sentence.

Defense Attorney Paul D. Michel reaffirmed this morning his intention to carry the decision of common pleas court to the Third district court of appeals. Mr. Michel previously had stated he would appeal the case when a motion for a new trial was denied by Judge Smith yesterday.

Urge Help For Greece, Turkey

Military Aid Needed To Meet Threat, Marshall and Forrestal Say.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 3—Secretaries Marshall and Forrestal told congress today there is "grave danger" Greece and Turkey cannot remain free without more military aid from the United States.

The two cabinet members testified jointly to the house foreign affairs committee in support of the administration's request for $275,000,000 for guns, planes and other weapons for the two nations.

Secretary of State Marshall said that arming the Greeks and Turks would be "discouraging" to further aggression against their countries.

Both Marshall and Secretary of Defense Forrestal left little doubt they were thinking of Russia.

Marshall said there is "clear evidence in Greece and Czechoslovakia of Communist intention against all nations that stand in the way of their expansion."

A Continuing Need

And as long as threats confront Greece and Turkey, Marshall said, there can be no assurance that American assistance can be stopped.

Forrestal said it is evident that "the military position in both countries must receive our first attention."

He added:

"Greece and Turkey lie on the fringe of totalitarian countries, whose actions leave little doubt that they hope to extend their control over these two strategically located nations."

Congress voted $400,000,000 for aid to Greece and Turkey last May. The $275,000,000 additional the lawmakers are now being asked to vote would be for spending in the 12 months beginning next July 1.

Both the cabinet members said the guerrillas are getting help

WOMAN INJURED BY UNKNOWN ASSAILANT

Sheriff Investigates Attack on Farm Resident.

An attack on a Marion county farm woman by an unknown assailant is under investigation today by Sheriff LeRoy Retterer.

The victim is Mrs. Ellery Brewer of route 3, a short distance north of Forest Glen Memorial Park.

As she returned to her home about midnight Monday Mrs. Brewer observed a car parked in her driveway without lights.

As she neared the entrance of her home a man got out of the car and asked her which road led to Upper Sandusky. Pointing to the highway in front of the house she replied "This is it."

When she turned to enter the house the assailant struck her on the head from the rear causing her to fall, injuring her knee on the concrete step.

Ellery Brewer, husband of the injured woman, was in the house at the time of the attack and hearing his wife's call for help ran to the door, saw the disappearing car and tried unsuccessfully to get the license number as it sped away.

Assisting his injured wife into the house, he summoned Hughes ambulance, which removed Mrs. Brewer to City hospital where she remains under treatment for head

GOP LEADERS ASSAIL STEEL PRICE BOOST

House Committee Head Joins Senator Taft in Voicing Criticism.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 3—The steel price boost in the face of coming wage talks brought fresh Republican criticism today.

Rep. Wolcott (R-Mich), vice chairman of the congressional economic committee, termed last month's increase "the worst thing that could have happened psychologically."

"The companies are seemingly inviting their men to come in and ask for more money," Wolcott told reporters. His comment came as he and other members of the senate-house economic group began studying day-long testimony of three steel company executives.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), the committee chairman, said this study will determine (A) whether further hearings are to be held and (B) whether the committee will have anything to say formally about the price jump.

Taft first brought up the matter of prices and wages during questioning of the steel men at yesterday's session.

Told that the price of semi-finished steel was boosted about $5 a ton because of rising costs, the Ohio senator commented that this argument "is the same one that could be made for labor and for all sides."

Taft said the "inevitable result" will be to spur wage demands.

Wolcott Not Convinced

Wolcott said he is not yet convinced that the increase was justified.

"Under the former pattern of price increases after wages are set," he commented, "they (the companies) might have been able to justify it at the present time."

President Truman last week ordered the justice department to look into the price boost to determine whether there had been any violation of the anti-trust laws. FBI agents visited the executive offices of 16 steel companies as part of that inquiry. No findings have been announced.

Those who testified yesterday were Benjamin F. Fairless, president of U. S. Steel Corporation Arthur B. Homer, president of Bethlehem Steel Co., and Hiland G. Batcheller, president of Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corp.

Fairless and Homer denied there had been any conference among steel companies on whether prices should be raised. And Batcheller said Allegheny Ludlum was forced to push up its prices when the cost of unfinished steel it buys from U. S. Steel rose.

Questioned by Taft

Taft, in questioning Homer and Batcheller, concentrated on what he called "the coincidence" of the price increases being announced the same day, Feb. 20.

"How does it happen that you all came out on that day?" Taft asked Homer.

"I can't explain that," Homer replied. "Our prices went up on the 13th. U. S. Steel's had gone up on the 13th. Then the big splash in the papers was around the 20th."

Batcheller said it was "entirely a coincidence." He said his company did not put up any prices until it was notified of U. S. Steel's action.

C.& O. CLEARS TRACKS OF TRUCK WRECKAGE

Steel-Laden Rig Struck Near Fostoria by "Sportsman."

By The United Press

FOSTORIA, O., March 3 — Workmen cleared the wreckage of a steel-laden tractor-trailer that was demolished at a crossing three miles north of here when struck by the Sportsman, fast Chesapeake and Ohio passenger train. No one was injured.

The rig was struck after it became stuck in the rails at the crossing, state highway patrolmen said. Lester Snell, the driver, attempted to flag the train but was unable to halt it.

Patrolmen said the engine on the Sportsman was badly damaged but did not leave the rails. A relief engine was brought up and the train resumed its journey. It operates between Detroit and Newport News, Va., with stops at Toledo, Marion, Columbus and

CONDON FACES HOUSE PROBE

Bureau of Standards Head Hit as Weakest Link in Atomic Security.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 3 — Public hearings to expand its charge that Dr. Edward U. Condon is "one of the weakest links in our atomic security" may be ordered by the house un-American activities committee.

The 46-year-old director of the national bureau of standards, which tests some of the government's biggest scientific secrets, scoffed at the accusation. He advised the country to "relax."

To finance its work for the rest of this year, the committee is asking for $200,000—double last year's fund. The house administration committee met today to vote on the request and perhaps bring it before the house for approval.

Robert E. Stripling, chief investigator for the un-American activities group, relayed word to reporters from Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R-NJ) that:

1. Commerce department loyalty records on Condon will be subpoenated today.

2. These may be used for public hearings.

3. Even if Condon is loyal—and the committee has no evidence he is not—he still could be indiscreet. And from a security standpoint Thomas, thinks it makes little difference.

The commerce department loyalty board was reported by Undersecretary William C. Foster to have found no reason to believe Condon is disloyal to the United States.

Thomas is in a hospital here with a stomach ailment. A subcommittee which he heads said in a report Monday that Condon "knowingly or unknowingly entertained and associated" with alleged Russian spies.

Henry A. Wallace, the Third party presidential condidate who recommended Condon for the post when Wallace had Harriman's job, said Condon has "kept inviolate his oath of office to defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies foreign and domestic."

Further support of Condon came meanwhile from Dr. Harlow Shapley, Harvard scientist. Addressing a group of 40 finalists in a national science scholarship competition last night, Shapley said:

"We must not permit in our country such attacks on science or such purges of scientists that * * * when you grow up you will be loath to accept government responsibility."

ACT TO OBTAIN NEW PLANS FOR TWO RUNWAYS

Action Taken After Stage One Proposals Are Found To Be Inadequate.

The city board of control last night rejected all bids for construction of the Municipal Airport project.

Mayor Harry L. Dowler stated reasons for the rejection of bids are two-fold. First, funds are insufficient to completely construct stage one of the existing plans, and if funds were available, stage one in its present form would not provide the desired facilities. Second: Requirement by Transcontinental Western Air Lines of a longer runway than the original plans provide, plus a second paved runway not in the original plans.

The reasons for the rejection of the bids arose from a meeting last night, called by Mayor Dowler, at which the city's existing airport plans were presented to representatives of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, the Ohio Aviation Board, and Transcontinental Western Airlines, the air carrier certificated to operate passenger and freight service from the new airport.

Bids Under Consideration

All bids on the construction of stage one of the airport project had been under consideration pending the result of discussion of last night's meeting, which was to determine the workability of the plans for stage one. All representatives of the air groups were in accord on the unsuitability of the present plans.

The discussions disclosed that Marion can have a workable airport with two paved runways and stay within the limits of finances now on hand and allocated for the project, by shifting part of the work originally planned for stage one to later stages, as non-essential at the present, and by including some work from later stages in the revised plan for stage one.

Taxiways and apron pavement can be reduced in size. Omission of a portion of the granular base under the longer runway and utilization of taxiways by incorporating them in the second paved runway plus slight revisions in drainage plans would effect sufficient savings in construction costs to give the city desired facilities while in no way reducing the operational utility of the airport for commercial transport.

New Legislation Sought

Council will be asked by the board of control at the regular meeting Monday night for legislation authorizing the service director to have the consulting engineers prepare a revision of the original plans to incorporate the changes necessary to give the city a first class airport within the funds provided.

The new plans when completed will include a north-east to south-west paved runway 4,300 feet long and a north-west, south-east paved runway approximately 3,500 feet long. Both runways will be 100 feet wide. The length of these proposed runways was arrived at after a presentation of present and future requirements for runways by E. H. Schofield, district airport engineer of the CAA, and TWA's requirements as stated by Jack Davis, assistant functional engineer of the TWA system.

Close cooperation with city engineers and the board of control was promised last night by TWA and CAA representatives to speed the completion of the airport project, as soon as a revision of existing plans can be completed by the designing engineers.

In addition to members of the board of control, the city engineer, and all members of council, J. B. Bray, chairman of the airport committee of the Chamber of Commerce, William Ehrick, a member of the committee and Robert T. Mason, Chamber president, attended the meeting.

LOOT EDISON MILL OF SAFE AND $800

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, O., March 3 — Burglars last night entered the office of the Edison Mill, grain elevator, at nearby Edison, and made off with a 400 pound safe containing an estimated $800 in cash and checks, Morrow county sheriff Tom England reported today.

The theft was discovered by Harry Martin, owner and operator of the elevator, when he entered the office this morning. Martin said the safe contained $200 in cash and $600 in checks plus the firm's ledgers and account books.

Sheriff England said entry was made through a back window facing the New York Central Railroad tracks. The safe was apparently hoisted out the window. Marks on the ground indicate the safe had been rolled on [illegible]

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

Roving Reports

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK

THERE is one thing rarer in the United States than a canary with mumps.

That is a middle-aged person.

Have you ever met one? I never have. Not one who would admit it anyway. The average person, man or woman, would rather confess he stuck thumbtacks in his grandmother than acknowledge he is middle-aged.

Middle age is a clammy, indefinite, uncertain time when you are no longer young and still haven't the years to justify your banging on a government window and demanding an old age pension.

Hal Boyle

The foreign lecturers who come to our shores and get rich by bleating that Americans are money-mad miss our real phobia. People in all civilized countries admire money. But this is the only land where everybody is either young or old, and nobody is ever middle-aged.

A man here wakes up in the morning and says to himself either (1) "Boy, I feel like a two-year-old," as (2) "Whooo-eeeey, I'm an old man today." He never rises and says, "Well, I sure do feel middle-aged."

This dislike for middle age shows even in our literature. There are many songs about youth, and Robert Browning serenaded the winter of life with his "Grow old along with me, the best is yet to be." But no poet ever bothered to write: "In the spring a middle-aged man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of security, the welfare of his children and the fact he no longer likes to gallop to catch the bus."

NOPE, YOU JUST can't put poesy into middle age.

How can you tell when you're middle-aged? The American philosophy is that you're as young as you feel." Wives spend a great deal of their conversational hours trying to convince their husbands this isn't so. So do night club bouncers, who are probably the best authorities in our culture on the behavior of middle-aged men.

The closest the culprit himself will come to admitting guilt is a grudging, "I ain't as young as I used to be." This is usually about the time he begins saving up his hangovers for weekends and waits for an elevator rather than climb one flight of stairs.

Another sign is his feeling of secret pleasure when he hears his high school son call him "the old man." If he overheard the boy refer to im as "the middle-aged man," he probably would flog him—or hire somebody to, as high school boys grow pretty big nowadays.

ONE OF THE WORST features of this twilight zone that follows when youth has flown is the anatomical bulge known as "middle age spread." This is a brutal term used by women in talking about other women who aren't present.

When her first grandchild arrives, a woman may cheerfully announce, "I'm just an old lady now." But she's just being coy. If you want to make an endless enemy, just reply: "Why, you're not really old—you're just middle-aged."

No woman ever thought of herself as "middle-aged," and she will claw anyone who calls her that.

The people who put out dictionaries are disillusioning. One skirts the issue by saying middle age is just the period between youth and age, but another defines it flatly as:

"From about 35 to 50 or 55 years old."

Feeling middle-aged? It's just the worried interlude between anticipation and retrospect.

WOUNDED FOR OUR TRANSGRESSION

John 19:37. "—They shall look on Him whom they pierced."

THOUGH our Savior never sinned, yet in heaven He will be the only One who will retain in His person, the marks caused by sin His redemptive work for us is so complete that when it finally climaxes in granting to us the privilege of a glorified body, we shall forever serve Him with complete deliverance from every weakness and frailty and scar. How glorious that will be for all those who have intensely suffered. But we believe that eternally Jesus will bear the scars which He received in procuring our redemption. After the resurrection He still carried them, and showed to the doubting disciples His pierced hands and riven side. He will still bear those wounds when He returns again to reign, for some will then ask, "What are these wounds in thine hands? And thus it seems that endlessly His scars will be a testimony and proof that your sins and mine—great though they were—have all been blotted out because of the great price which He paid for our redemption.

Your Good Health

By DR. HERMAN N. BUNDESEN

Nervous System Disorders

The great symphony of life in the human body is presided over by the nervous system, which acts just as the conductor of an orchestra does to draw all parts into one harmonious round of action, and to make each contribute its necessary part at the right moment.

By far the greater part of the body's functioning is under the control of the autonomic nervous system, which, by doctors, is divided into two parts, the sympathetic and the parasympathetic. Between them, these two systems regulate the beating of the heart, breathing, the action of the digestive organs, kidneys, arteries, and veins. Thus, it is easy to see that if anything goes wrong with either of these two systems, the resulting trouble is likely to be grave.

Recently, we have been given a new drug called neostigmine, which has a beneficial effect in many disorders where the parasympathetic system is at fault. The general effect of this drug seems to lie in the way it stimulates the parasympathetic nerves.

This action on the nervous system, in turn, may aid in overcoming weakness in the muscles of the bladder and gastro-intestinal trouble. It increases the secretion from glands, including the tear glands, the salivary glands, and sweat glands. It dilates or enlarges the tiny arteries, and this improves circulation in certain parts of the body. The preparation may be taken by mouth or may be given by injection into a muscle.

One condition in which the drug has been found especially useful is myasthemia gravis, in which there is a gradual development of weakness of the muscles of the body. The drug helps to overcome such symptoms as difficulty in swallowing, inability to chew, and weakness following body movements, all of which occur in myasthenia gravis.

The value of the drug in this condition may be increased by giving it together with ephedrine and other preparations. While the drug greatly improves the muscle action in this disorder, it does not seem to have any effect in other diseases affecting the movement of the muscles, such as multiple sclerosis and poliomyelitis.

Sometimes the abdomen is swollen or distended without there being any blocking of the opening through to the bowel. In such cases, relief may be obtained by the injection of neostigmine under the skin. Such treatment is particularly useful for distention of the abdomen following operations. After an operation, the patient may be unable to empty the bladder. Neostigmine is also useful in overcoming this difficulty.

In certain prolonged diseases affecting the nervous system, coldness of the hands and feet and constipation are present. Often, these symptoms, too, may be relieved by the use of neostigmine.

There is a disorder known as Raynaud's disease in which there is spasm of the blood vessels in the hands, causing pain and blanching of the skin. Neostigmine is of benefit in this condition, also.

Letters from Our Readers

WALLACE AND COMMUNISM

Editor of The Star: There have been many and varied discussions concerning the third party and Henry Wallace. I do not write this letter because I am against a third party but I am against a Communist third party. Please finish this letter before condemning me for this stand.

Let us turn back a few pages and bring out some of Mr. Wallace's ideas and see where we come out. When Mr. Wallace's backed candidate won in a recent New York election, the Communist newspapers played it up heavy, while their usual report is some derogatory or down in the mud article. I have nothing personal against Mr. Wallace but I hate anything that smells of Communism, steeped in stealth, deceit and trickery.

Recently at a senate hearing Wallace made the statement that our American press does not give a true picture of Russia. Now, I ask you, if our press fails to print the truth, then where in the world will you find a press that does? As we know, the Russian press and radio is government controlled. We hear only what Stalin wants to get out. In Russia, during an election, there is one candidate for each office. If you vote or do not, he gets in just the same.

Mr. Wallace says we should try to cooperate and understand Russia. That's a laugh. Did you ever try to cooperate with some one who failed to cooperate with you? Any one who has kept abreast of current news events knows how we have tried.

How can we expect to give full cooperation to a country which is shrouded in a veil of secrecy? Russian agents—so-called government—run at will about this country and their number seem unlimited, but our government diplomats are restricted in number in Russia and their movements are limited.

That's the way the Communist controlled countries are run. Russia has lowered the iron curtain around all countries she has forced herself upon. No one knows what goes on unless some fortunate enslaved persons make good their escape. Russia and Communism means machine gun rule. Now can we be expected to cooperate under those conditions?

Wallace's leanings toward this form of government were displayed in his recent plan for European relief. Some of his points were as follows: "50 billion dollars" for a reconstruction plan. Fine, so far. "All nations with appropriate means would finance." We know that the whole of Europe is broke. So far in our efforts to help we have put up 70 per cent of the cost. That would indicate we would pay 35 billion, and where would the other 15 billion come from? Russia?

Mr. Wallace goes on: "It would be parceled out on a priority basis to those nations that have suffered most in the war, including Eastern Europe." Sounds good. But wait! The countries that have suffered most are now under Russian domination, such as Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Hungary, and of course Russia herself.

He continues: "My plan would eliminate the present American intervention in Greece, China, Indonesia and Indo-China." That sounds all right except for the fact Russia has her hand in all these countries now. China is practically in the Communist hands. Greece is fighting a battle for her life against it and of course we have the recent tragedy of Czechoslovakia. Now we hear of the Russian demands upon Finland and Norway. Yes, things would be easier for Russia if we keep out of those countries

Wallace considers these points the secret of getting along with Russia. Evidently Mr. Wallace has never heard of Vishinski or Molotov, the "veto" boys of the United Nations conference.

There could be pages more written about this but space does not permit. This is the type of program Mr. Wallace seems to favor. You be the judge. Think of Czechoslovakia, too. Read your newspaper. Listen to your radio and then you'll be able to piece together the work of the Communist and how close it checks with Wallace. Yours for a strong American who realizes we need a change but not a revolution.

NEW MOVE IN GALION BATTLE

Referendum Election Sought in Controversy Over Appointment of Official.

Special to The Star

GALION, O., March 3—Several Galion citizens last night aired their views at a meeting of city council regarding a referendum petition being circulated here by John P. Drouth asking for an election to fix the salary and bond for Galions new safety-service director.

Council's answer to the matter was to pass a resolution directing the city solicitor to defend the city against the suit recently filed by Drouth in common pleas court, aimed at blocking the hiring of John F. Porter of Troy as safety-service director at an annual salary of $7,200.

The referendum petition is Drouth's newest move in his battle to block the Porter appointment. Hearing on the common pleas court suit has been set for March 29 at Bucyrus.

Opposed by Attorney

Attorney Carl Gugler expressed his opinion that a referendum election could not be held until November, and in the meantime the city would be tied up for nearly a year. He said, "We may find that by the end of the year we have not overpaid, but underpaid, the new service-safety director . . . It would be a sad situation, if one individual would go against the will of the newly elected council."

Mayor H. H. Hartmann said, "I think that this is a vicious attack against the city. I believe, though, that most people will take enough interest in Galion to take time to read the petition before signing."

President of Council Otto Pfeifer also condemned Drouth's action.

The referendum petition reads as follows: "The undersigned electors of ward in the City of Galion, Ohio, do hereby petition for a referendum election to be held, according to and under the General Code of the State of Ohio, to refer ordinance number 2762 entitled 'Fixing the Salary and Bond of the Combined Office of the Director of Public Service and Safety of the City of Galion, Ohio,' passed Feb. 2, 1948, by the council of the City of Galion, Ohio, and filed with the Mayor of the City of Galion, Ohio, on Feb. 4, 1948, to a vote of the electors of the said city, pursuant to law." The petition contains a full copy of the ordinance in question, and does not name a specific part of the ordinance for objection.

Basis of Suit

Drouth's petition last week asking the restraining order to prevent payment of Porter's salary, was filed on the grounds that city council was "guilty of abuse of discretion" in setting the salary at that figure.

Meanwhile, civic organizations, businessmen and industrial groups are joining in a counter-move to block the referendum petition and injunction allow the city to carry on its functions without delay.

Mayor H. H. Hartmann today declared that the petitions are an assault against the best interests of the city. He said he feels that efficient and economical operation of the city government, now appraised at nearly $20,000,000, requires the full time service of an engineer with administrative ability and a man of special talents, experience and integrity. He feels justified in his appointment of Mr. Porter, a graduate civil engineer with years of experience in Cincinnati and Troy, O., to the position of service-safety director at a salary of $7,200 a year. Mr. Porter's appointment is effective March 5.

The Philippine Islands form a huge triangle 1,152 miles from north to south and 688 miles from east to west.

ACCUSED OF FRAUD. Retired chief of supply at the Air Material command at Wright Field, O., Maj. Gen. Lester Miller is one of four defendants in a civil suit for $17,000 brought in Federal court by a New York corporation charging fraud in connection with the sale of surplus parachutes.

One application for membership was accepted at a meeting of Marion Voiture No. 42, 40 et 8, Monday night in the American Legion Dugout. Chef de gare William E. Marks, presided.

A committee, composed of Col. Copeland, William Arndt and James E. Black, was appointed to interest members in this welfare work.

Plans were discussed for a ladies night banquet in the near future. A committee to name the date and place was appointed and is composed of Roy Waddell, J. Albert Dripps, D. J. A KNOTT HOTEL—Joseph F. Duddy, Manager

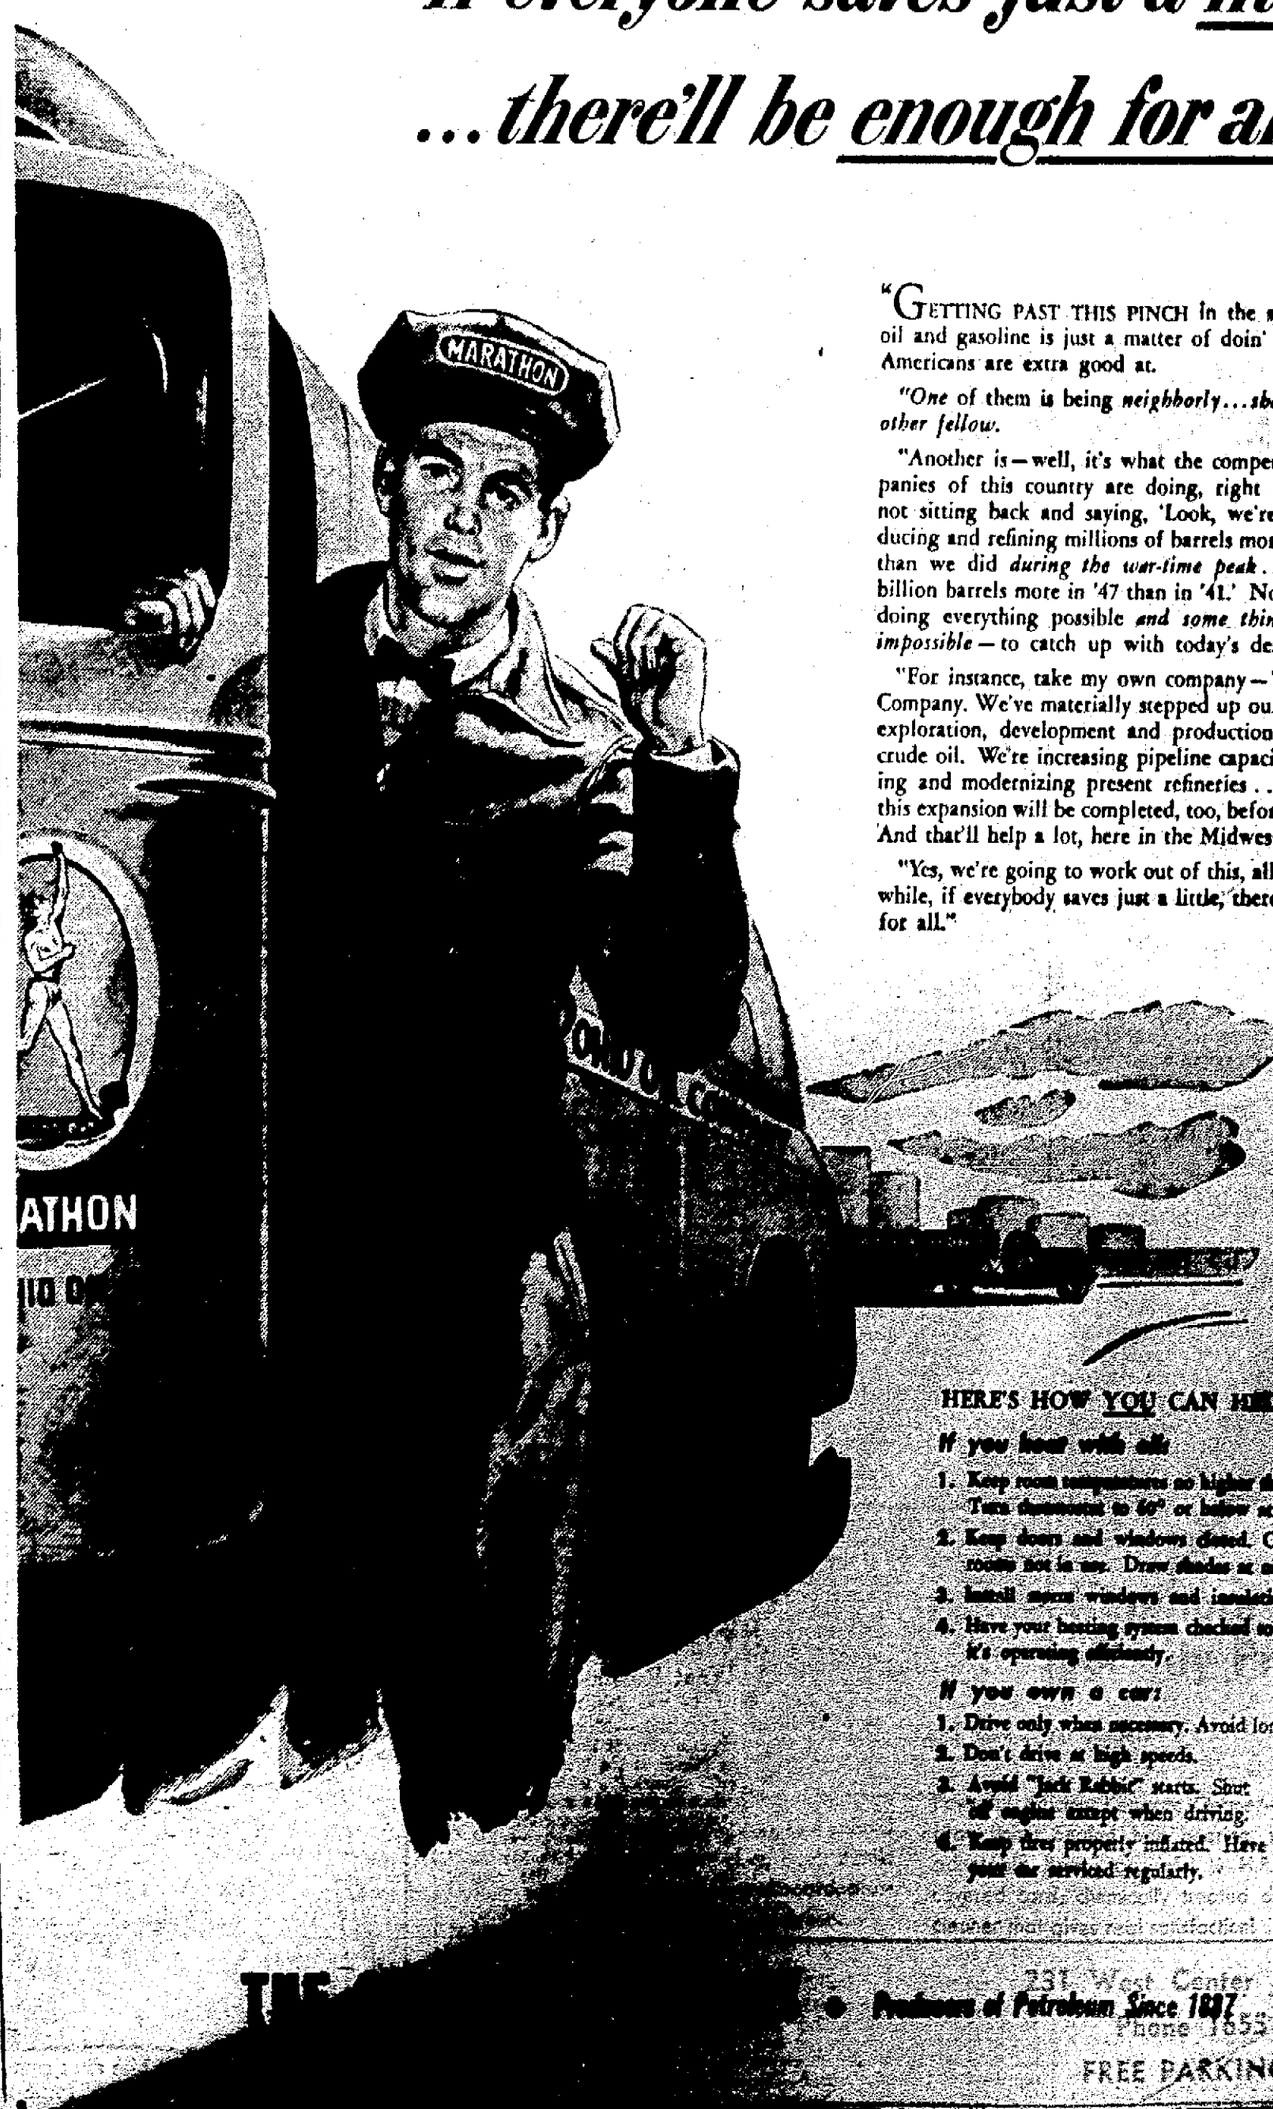
"If everyone saves just a little ...there'll be enough for all



"GETTING PAST THIS PINCH in the supply of fuel oil and gasoline is just a matter of doin' the things we Americans are extra good at.

"One of them is being neighborly...sharing with the other fellow.

"Another is—well, it's what the competitive oil companies of this country are doing, right now. They're not sitting back and saying, 'Look, we're already producing and refining millions of barrels more oil products than we did during the war-time peak...over half a billion barrels more in '47 than in '41.' No, sir. They're doing everything possible and some things that seem impossible—to catch up with today's demand.

"For instance, take my own company—The Ohio Oil Company. We've materially stepped up our program for exploration, development and production to get more crude oil. We're increasing pipeline capacity...expanding and modernizing present refineries...Looks as if this expansion will be completed, too, before next winter. And that'll help a lot, here in the Midwest.

"Yes, we're going to work out of this, all right. Meanwhile, if everybody saves just a little, there'll be enough for all."

HERE'S HOW YOU CAN HELP

If you heat with oil:

1. Keep room temperatures no higher than 68°. Turn thermostat to 60° or below at night.
2. Keep doors and windows closed. Close off rooms not in use. Draw shades at night.
3. Install storm windows and insulation.
4. Have your heating system checked to be sure it's operating efficiently.

If you own a car:

1. Drive only when necessary. Avoid long trips.
2. Don't drive at high speeds.
3. Avoid "Jack Rabbit" starts. Shut off engine except when driving.
4. Keep tires properly inflated. Have your car serviced regularly.

Careful, Boys

CANDIDATE Wallace and his running mate, Senator Taylor, have given the same answer to a question about Czechoslovakia—an answer that irritated their Communist friends. When asked whether they believed events in Czechoslovakia were attributable to Russia or to the Czech and Slovak peoples themselves, both replied they believed it was the Russians who were responsible.

Now any Communist "knows" that developments in Czechoslovakia were the result of spontaneous action by "people's committees." As the Communist Daily Worker itself pointed out in chiding Wallace and Taylor..."To grant for a moment that Czechoslovakia's changes are under Soviet pressure has the effect of robbing each people of their own nationality, their specific character, their own inherent right to determine their own affairs..."

Candidates Wallace and Taylor had best exercise more care in answering such questions lest they alienate their most devoted supporters. For it's only a step from admitting that Russia undermined Czechoslovakia to conceding that American Communists are tools of Russia; and any American Communist "knows" that isn't so.

A Logical Merger

CONSOLIDATION of the armed forces is a process that will cover years, perhaps decades. Sometimes it will appear to be losing ground, as when the Air Forces finds it necessary to set up its own vast administrative system to handle paper work formerly taken care of by the Army.

But in such actions as the recent merging of the air transport command and the naval air transport service there are indications that progress is being made. It was an obvious consolidation, for it eventually will result in the elimination of thousands of miles of duplicating routes and facilities. It behooves Defense Secretary Forrestal to see that the merger is carried out in actuality and that the new facility, to be known as the military air transport service—MATS—is more than a consolidation in name only.

This merger was one of the recommendations of the President's air policy commission. It also demonstrates the wisdom of another of the commission's recommendations, which was that the military establishment's use of aircraft be subjected to periodic review to eliminate duplicated effort.

Tax-Dodging Ships

IN THE first half of 1947, Greek-owned ships ranked third as carriers of American goods, yet virtually all their owners live outside Greece and, aside from small registry fees, pay no taxes to any government.

That was the gist of testimony by Joseph Curran, National Maritime union president, before the senate foreign relations committee. European-owned vessels long have been operated under the flags of nations allowing substandard labor and safety conditions, according to Curran. Nearly half the vessels of Panamanian registry are Greek-owned.

Before the war that policy was not criticized. But now that the owners of such ships are benefiting greatly from the revenues of our European aid program, they own an obligation to assist in supporting their own governments.

Stability and Stagnation

CHAIRMAN NOURSE of the President's council of economic advisers says the council's April report will recommend that employers adopt the annual or guaranteed wage as a buffer against depressions. It will not, however, recommend legislation compelling it.

The guaranteed wage has serious drawbacks to offset its favorable aspects. It would cause employers to hesitate taking on new help unless certain they could furnish permanent employment for it. New enterprises and plant expansion would be hampered. Industries dependent on coal and steel, as most of them are, would be left holding the bag in case strikes cut off supplies. Fuel shortages in cold weather would be doubly chaotic.

Walter Reuther is campaigning for the guaranteed wage in the auto industry. Theoretically, this industry should be stable because there is an assured market for automobiles, but the industry actually isn't stable because it can't control all the elements of production.

A national industrial conference board survey shows that of 61 plants which have tried guaranteed wages, 32 gave up after trial periods. Only two have kept them more than 20 years.

Conceivably a guaranteed wage might work in a strike-free economy, stabilizing industry and employment. But it is an easy matter for stability to become stagnation.

Scanning the Record

By George E. Sokolsky

Farley's Book Tells an Interesting Story.

JIM FARLEY tells a story in his book which to me is extremely interesting because since Franklin D. Roosevelt torpedoed the London economic conference, there has been no authentic explanation for his conduct, except the lame statements of Henry Morgenthau, Jr. Many students of such problems believe that had Roosevelt not stabbed that conference in the back, there would have been no war.

SOKOLSKY

Be that as it may, Jim Farley says:

"...I do know that the collapse of the conference offered comfort to the opposition, who had been silenced by the accomplishments of the administration up to that time. It was a reversal, though it did not seem to be a major one. It is my conviction that the President wrecked the conference because he thought bankers, whom he had castigated in his inaugural address, were engaged in a great international plot against him. I say this, because he told me Thomas Lamont of J. P. Morgan and Company was responsible for Herbert Bayard Swope's being on the American delegation. Lamont thought that Swope might have some influence on Moley in connection with the stabilization scheme. FDR said Lamont had placed someone on the boat to contact Swope and Moley. He was quite incensed about this, saying Lamont was a personal friend and should not have acted so."

All this shows how Roosevelt liked fishwives' tales and believed them. I am supposed to have been the person that Tom Lamont placed on the boat to contact Swope and Moley. I heard it for years but I never believed that the President of the United States lacked the means to discover that that was untrue or that he would ruin the world on its account.

True, I was on the ship, but so were hundreds of others. I was there on business of my own. I knew Swope, who early in my career gave me a job. I did not know Moley and when we met, we got into a fierce argument on silver, I regarding myself an expert on the subject because I lost money buying some of it in China. Moley said that losing money is no sign of expertness, in which, alas, I agree with him.

As for Tom Lamont, he never discussed the conference except one morning in London when we did talk about the Chinese consortium, an enterprise which he headed and with which I was familiar. I no more represented him than I represented Franklin D. Roosevelt.

As for Swope's barging into the American delegation as a Morgan man, that is just a plain lie. I do not mean that Farley is untruthful; I mean that Roosevelt was. The evidence:

"WESTERN UNION

Received at 70 Main Street, Hempstead, N. Y.

NBN116 71-Whitehouse Washington, DC June 16, 1933

Herbert Bayard Swope
Sandspoint, NY

Would be delighted if you could accompany Raymond Moley for short visit to London stop I am sending him soon and feel your presence would be exceedingly helpful to him and country in many ways stop I should be personally grateful to have you do this having confidence as I do in your judgment and your wide knowledge of international affairs stop You would be absent from this country only about a month.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

In a word, Roosevelt sent Swope to London to "be exceedingly helpful" to Moley and the country. But that is not what Roosevelt told Jim Farley.

As one reads Jim Farley's book, Roosevelt, as a political personality becomes increasingly vivid. Apparently, he was a vindictive man who took it out of the hides of those who crossed him. Read Farley on the purges:

"'I just won't go along with Carter Glass on any appointment in Virginia.' He (Roosevelt) was almost peevish. 'And I won't go along with Walter George in Georgia. That's final.'"

Jim Farley has written a rare book, an honest book. He takes the blame when it is his. He gives praise to Roosevelt where praise is due. He is truthful as to the facts. Petty partisans, small souls that were permitted to peep through keyholes or peer over transoms, will criticize him, but the historian will use this volume as basic source material.

Just a Minute

By Jack Tarver

Who Nominated Him . . . Petrillo?

Idaho's Glen Taylor, the senate's singing cowboy, has been announced as Henry Wallace's running mate.

That'll be some combination, what with Glen campaigning on his horse and Henry on a cloud.

Still, Taylor is a natural candidate. He's got ability, personality and color, to say nothing of franking privileges.

The Wallace faction is elated. Taylor will doubtless attract some of the rational fringe.

He may not strengthen the ticket; but certainly he can't weaken it.

Undeniably, it'll be reassuring, seeing Wallace, Taylor and the latter's pony . . . and knowing that at least one of the trio has horse sense.

Incidentally, President Truman, who is doing everything he can to offset the Wallace vote, may now give in to Dixie's demands for a southern vice presidential candidate.

Provided, that is, he can get Roy Acuff.

Why the South Is Angry

By Raymond Moley

WHEREVER conversation turns to politics these days, three questions are asked. What is it that the southern governors are so angry about? What can they do about it? What are they likely to do about it?

It may be useful to spell out the anwers to these questions, since the President's civil rights program is a rather bulky document which few Americans have had a chance to analyze and since most Americans are hazy about the way Presidents are elected.

MOLEY

In December, 1946, President Truman by executive order created the President's committee on civil rights and directed it "to inquire into and to determine" how federal, state and local laws and governments might be "strengthened and improved to safeguard the civil rights of the people." Most of the members of the committee were northerners, and several of them have long been identified with movements favoring Federal action against discriminatory laws and practices. Charles E. Wilson was chairman.

Covered Lots of Ground

The committee apparently took its job very seriously and, after a year of work, turned in a long report packed full of specific recommendations for new legislation and administrative action by Federal, state and local governments. Many of the old and controverted measures were recommended, such as a federal anti-lynching law, abolition of poll taxes as voting requirements, federal acts to protect the right of qualified persons to vote in federal elections, repeal of state laws establishing discrimination, prohibition of discrimination in the armed services a Federal fair employment practice act and a number of other measures aimed at abolishing discrimination. The report, in short, is a catalogue of the issues which in years past have stirred the anger of Southern people who want such matters to be left to their states.

Objected to "Teeth"

Perhaps the recommendations would not have disturbed the South so much if the report had not proposed to give its measures a full set of very sharp teeth. The first recommendation was for a powerful Federal prosecuting and policing agency in the Department of Justice, with regional offices, trained personnel, a special FBI unit and even police-training programs and schools. I think it is no overstatement to conclude that the report proposed to lay a very heavy federal hand on states which have been most sensitive to interference in what they regard as state concerns.

Governor William Tuck of Virginia has taken the lead in pointing out what southern states can do to punish the President for what they regard as a complete surrender to Northern Democratic and Republican demands for federal action. He proposed that the Virginia ballot contain only the names of the presidential electors nominated for that state and that such electors be free to ignore the nominees of the national conventions for president and vice president. This is legally and morally possible although it is a break with tradition. Under this plan, after election the Virginia electors would be free to vote for someone other than the candidate of their party or, possibly, to refuse to vote at all. I say "possibly" because it can be argued that by the use of the words "shall vote," the Constitution requires the electors to vote for someone. By denying to Truman their electoral votes, such states as agree with the Virginia governor would assure his almost certain defeat.

The answer to the question about what is likely to happen is speculative. All that can be said is that, if this is a bluff, it is the most concrete bluff that the South has made in many years of protest. And it may be the expression of an intention of deadly seriousness.

What Russia Reads

By The Associated Press

LONDON — Moscow Radio reports a current best-selling novel in Russia is Ira Wolfert's "Tucker's People," which it said "exposes the social origin of gangsterism and the gangster nature of American monopoly capital."

Upton Sinclair's "World's End" depicting American life during World War I, and the Sinclair Lewis novel "Gideon Planish" which the radio said was "aimed against fascism and its manifestations in America," will soon come off Russian presses.

The Flames Leap Higher

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, March 3, 1938.

The house naval affairs committee approved legislation to authorize a $1,113,546,000 expansion of the Navy.

A cold wave, perhaps the winter's final blast, was predicted for Ohio.

Mayor Frederick C. Smith, in a formal message to city council, vetoed a city ordinance appropriating $3,804.03 to meet back salary claims of 10 city officials and employes.

Mrs. Elizabeth Myers, 69, widow of Jacob Myers, died at her home on Mt. Vernon avenue.

Mrs. Fred W. Warner was hostess to the Y. M. E. club at her home on Girard avenue.

Mrs. B. H. Rice reviewed the closing chapter of the study book, "Rebuilding Rural America," at a meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary society of Wesley M. E. church, in the church parlors.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Saturday, March 3, 1928.

Aaron Barnhill, 44, of Latourette street, was killed in an automobile collision near Logan as he was driving to the bedside of his father, who was critically ill at his home near Athens.

Dr. Sidney H. Katz, former Marion man who had won outstanding distinction as a chemical engineer with the United States bureau of mines, was commissioned for special service during the coming year in England at the request of government officials of this country.

Dr. N. Sifritt, county health commissioner, reported there were no contagious diseases in his territory which included that part of the county outside the city.

Police Chief J. W. Thompson received a letter from a 48-year-old woman in Huntington, W. Va. stating that in view of this being leap year she wished to take advantage of the opportunity to get a husband and asked the chief's aid in locating some prospect in Marion.

New potatoes were selling here at two pounds for 25 cents, old potatoes 40 cents a peck, apples $1.25 to $3.50 a bushel, pork chops 15 cents a pound, bacon 22 cents a pound and dressed chickens 33 cents a pound.

George Day, Jr., student at Miami university, was a weekend visitor with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Day of Thew avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. LaRue entertained a company of children at their home on the Green Camp pike celebrating the birthday anniversary of their daughter, Rebecca.

Mr. and Mrs. George P. Henry entertained friends and relatives at their home on Neil avenue celebrating their silver wedding anniversary.

Robert Taft—The Statesman

From the Cleveland News.

FIGURATIVELY all his life, literally for the last six months, Senator Taft has been startling friends and ill-wishers alike by his sharpness of opinion about current events, a sharpness that always brings to mind the word "impolitic."

He has been frank to tell farmers about the ills of the subsidies they receive. He was frank when he stigmatized the Nuernberg war guilt trials as legally "shameful." He was frank in his many observations critical of the scope and of some purposes of the European Relief Program.

Two weeks ago he was frank in criticism of newspaper writers as too often the seers, not often enough mere factual reporters; and we submit this was courage that came close to foolhardiness!

Now, after President Truman has murmured a vague nothing and Secretary Marshall has declined to talk, Senator Taft has spoken out loud for backing up the U.N. in the teeth of the clouds rising over the U.N.'s partition of Palestine into Jewish and Arab states.

Let it be noted he is the first statesman anywhere to say what should be done. As usual, there is no evading the frankness of his views. Last Saturday he declared:

"The question is whether we shall support the U.N. and urge them to send a U.N. force to maintain order while the plan is set up. Otherwise, when the British withdraw, there will be nothing but confusion and civil war in Palestine.

"If the U.N. shows that it intends to see that its decision in the world is to be enforced, I doubt if any nation will defy it, and a moderate force should be able to prevent any interference by guerrilla bands with the putting into effect of the plan . . .

"This situation calls for more than formal expression of adherence to the U.N. decision on the part of our government. It cannot be met or rectified with a do-nothing policy.

"There can be no question of any 'new' American policy which does not square with our commitments . . . We should cooperate vigorously with the U.N. commission to work out a program and policy calculated to implement the decision of the commission. The shipment of arms from the U. S. should be regulated in accordance with policy so developed, and embargoes imposed only if approved by the commission."

THIS is almost as blunt as saying, "We said we were going to do this, and we mean it, don't we?" After a cold, clear voice like this, it will take a very calculating and evasive politition to propose drawing back from the American responsibility to see that the U.N. in its first major decision crisis, not only stands firm but enforces its ruling, come what may.

Senator Taft thinks of everything, and he indubitably considered the shock to many Americans from a prospect of an armed clash in which Americans (even disguised in U.N. uniforms, or whatever the presentation) will face explosive fire and possible death. That has not caused him to recoil from the principle that the U. S. gave its word and the U. S. keeps its word.

Thinking of every consideration, as his analytical mind does, he has also risked the possibility of contemptuous comment from some of his own support that he has made a political play for the American Jewish vote. And that has not caused him to withdraw from the clean position that, when the U. S. gives its word, it backs it up.

Who ventures to debate this principle with Mr. Taft?

Life in Alaska

In reviewing some of the writings on Alaska, it is obvious to those with first-hand information that the balance between the good and the bad material is sometimes tipped slightly toward the side of uninformed, misguided, exaggerated or even harmful accounts. Despite efforts aimed at the opposite result, too many residents of the United States persist in viewing Alaska either as a frozen waste or a country where gold, easy living and romantic adventure are theirs for the asking.

Neither is true, of course. Alaska is a land of vast distances, about one-fifth the total area of the United States, and with a variety of climates rather than a climate consistent with such a huge area. Perpetual snow and ice are characteristic of about a scant 3 per cent of the territory. Rather than offering easy living, Alaska is a land only for hard workers with above-average gifts of initiative, foresight, physical ruggedness, intelligence and persistence, writes Edwin G. Arnold in "Think." Alaskans themselves want no other type of newcomer, and the country offers opportunity to none other.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The Weather by Television

It is now possible to get weather reports by television. What fun to sit in front of the set and watch what the elements are doing at play.

"Tune in," we said to the wife the other day, "and see if you can get a couple of April showers."

"Who are they playing today?" she asked absent-mindedly.

"It's the weather I'm after," we explained. "It might be very interesting."

"Are you kidding?" she asked.

"Not at all. The U.S. Weather Bureau is broadcasting by television the complete weather formations, showing the cold and warm fronts, the dry and wet areas and everything."

PHILLIP

"I don't think I would care for it great," said the missus. "There must be other things more exciting."

* * *

"What could be more exciting?" we demanded. "Picture the warm front all lined-up waiting for the cold front to kick off.....the referee's whistle!... the clash of weather fronts!... the warm weather front!... sunshine out to beat the band... the light southerly breezes taking on the nor'easter!"

"Who's sponsoring today's weather? The General Motors or somebody's beer?" asked the wife.

"It hasn't got a sponsor yet," we explained.

"It will get one if it is bad enough," she sighed.

"Tune in and get it will ya?" we pleaded.

"Not unless I can win prizes through it," said flatly.

"Woman, wouldn't you be glad to see tomorrow's weather battling for position, struggling for its goals?"

"Not unless the weather bureau gave away a sedan, a trailer, a motorboat, a house and six deep freezers and painted my home in and out," she said.

"You mean to say you are not interested whether we are going to get rain or snow?"

"Why should I want to get rain or snow when I can tune into a dozen radio programs, regardless of television, and get diamond rings, jeweled watches, airplanes, iceboxes, and $10 in cash?" she asked. "I'll bet the weather bureau doesn't even give a set of dishes with its cold and warm fronts."

It was useless to argue, so we tuned in with her. It started off fast enough. A low pressure area from the South came swooping across the screen at a great clip. A high pressure area, late, came tearing out of the northeast corner full of pep and swinging in all directions. Presently a snow front leaped into the fray but something went wrong with our television set and on the screen we beheld a lightweight boxer, two hockey teams and something that looked half tenor and half hot wave. All we could make of it was that tomorrow's weather would be somewhat cooler, with westerly rain-punches, considerable rough ice work following by heavy rains and light opera.

We are through with television weather until it perfects a suitable jingle.

Pattern for Extinction

A smile, a pledge, some pressure slight,
An open door, some jurisdiction...
A frown, a glare, a whistle-call
The double cross, and crucifixion!

If Hank Wallace and Glen Taylor, his copal, should win the election, we assume Gene Autry would be Secretary of State with current Tom Mix, Secretary of the Treasury.

That speech of Warren Austin on the Palestine partitioning issue has had a depressing effect on life in general. Last night we saw a fellow beaten up, kicked up and down a gutter and left for dead. The police, upon arriving, said they couldn't do a thing "pending appointment of a commission to see if the peace was being threatened.

Ye Broadway Bugle and Banner

A butter and egg man is now an oleo and a toaster....New high for futility: Those marchers in Park Avenue bearing signs "Stop Stalin! Save Czechoslovakia"....When a fellow does not seem to be getting the best of it these days, they say he is being "Austined" around.. Hauntingly musical number, "Saturday Night In Central Park"....Ye ed hopes that absence of Theodore Granik's Forum of the Air, a 20-year radio feature, is only temporary....Can't a good program remain on the air any more unless it opens with a jingle and closes with an offer to paint your house inside and out?... Hot comers from Miami are still chuckling about that statement of the Miami Beach police chief: "We don't intend to bother bookies; they never bother us."....Pay off every time, eh?

Spring Song

By TRUMAN TWILL

Spring happens this month. Ah sure. Remove storm windows and install screens. Patch holes gouged in the roof by ice. Level sidewalks heaved out of line by frost. Spade garden.

Spray fruit trees. Spray rose bushes. Sweep the porch. Haul away ashes. Clean walls and wash woodwork. Beat the carpets—carefully there, not too hard. Figure out a way to hang the clothesline.

Plant $5 worth of grass seed that won't be washed away. Adopt a resolution to do something about the shrubbery that's languishing. Repair the steps on the front and back porch. Do something constructive about the drive. Get the dandelions and plantain out of the grass.

Arrange with the man to do something about the sporting at a price in line with what you pay. Put out feelers about the housing situation to see if it's still bad. Examine the windows to determine extent of the need for calking, puttying etc.

Get set for someone to have an inspiration about a picnic. See the boss about the vacation schedule. Get quotations on a set of new tires.

Install new washers in the outside spigots. Look into the advisability of converting more space to vegetables and less to flower seeds that don't come up anyway.

Write a series of friendly notes to folks living in places close to probable vacation spots and destinations. Adopt a resolution to attend a few professional baseball games at any price. It is not baseball the great American game is? Buy two new screens and get estimates on a new door.

Get a new garden hose—better get two, they're small. Start saving nickles—dollars, that is—for one of those summer suits. Buy a new sun glasses—there are a dozen pairs of them on hand. Paint the porch furniture early so it will be dry by August.

Find a trellis for the rose bush. Don't plant nasturium seeds too shallow. Don't plant seeds too thick. Have the oil changed in the struggle-buggy. Lay in a little fishing tackle while the supply is good.

Don't be foolish about sunburn. Don't get in by that old line about anyone being able to play a fair game of golf if you can't. Admit now that it's a waste of time to try to raise a crop under an apple tree; it won't work.

Ah spring.

"Dot ees goot. I no need to worry about anythings. I'll se down as queeck as lettle sheep hin vag hees tail, und I ask Meeses Ticer to forgif me for vot I said."

"Put that off till dinner is over," I said quickly, for I saw possibilities of distinct trouble in that program. Both Mrs. Ticer and Katie are quick-tempered, and sharp of speech. I wanted no clash between them such as Katie's apologies—I guessed they would be double-edged—might bring.

"You will have no time for saying anything to Mrs. Ticer except about the dinner," I went on. "And I shall know when I come down whether or not you have been treating her courteously. I am putting you on your honor, remember."

"Scout honor, cross my heart hope to die," she said, mixing things up gloriously, as is her wont' and crossing her chest vigorously.

"Then I will leave you now," I said, turning to the door. "Shall I put in your biscuits, or have Mrs. Ticer put them in?"

"Oh!" she wailed. Then she caught herself. "Votever you tink best," she said with a meekness that I told myself made her a rival for Patient Griselda.

"You'll be down inside of five minutes?" I asked.

"Quicker dan dot," she said eagerly. "I told you I coom—"

"Yes, I know," I said quickly, warding off another reference to her beloved simile of a "leetle sheep." "And, I'll wait five minutes before putting in the biscuit. Goodby, now, and bathe your face in cold water before you come down."

"All right, I feex," she said, and as I went out of the door on the time-honored phrase, I knew that Katie was her volatile self again, and knew also that she had had a severe shock, and would be good for many moons to come.

I found Mrs. Ticer in the kitchen, sitting quietly on a chair, and watching the door. When she saw me come into the room, she eyed me warily. Then a wide grin appeared on her face.

"I think I backed the right horse," she said. "May I go home now? I don't think I'm going to be needed."

"Indeed you are," I told her firmly. "That is one of the conditions which I made for Katie's keeping her job, that she stop her foolish jealousy of you. She is prepared to apologize all over the place."

"Oh, oh, don't let her do that!" Mrs. Ticer exclaimed in patent dismay. "I'll be sure to say the wrong thing, and then she'll be mad again."

"No she won't," I said. "She's too frightened about losing her job. I really made her believe I meant what I said."

"But you didn't," Mrs. Ticer said comfortably.

"I was angry enough to mean it," I said, "but, at any rate, I have told her she must make no apologies until after the dinner is out of the way. By that time, she will have forgotten all about it. She promised to be down in less than five minutes to put in her biscuits."

"She'd drop dead in her tracks if anybody else touched those biscuits," she said. "But you win again," she added in a lower tone. "I hear her coming now."

OHIO PROPERTY TAX ATTACKED

Solon Seeks Abolishment of Personal Basis of Real Estate Taxation.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, March 3 — Ohio needs a law abolishing the "discriminatory personal property tax basis" in effect since 1932, State Senator Howard M. Metzenbaum declared today.

And if Gov. Thomas J. Herbert will call a special legislative session, he said in a statement, he will introduce such a bill. He mailed the statement to Herbert today.

The Cleveland Democrat's proposal was prompted by a recent Ohio supreme court decision permitting two Muskingum county potteries to transfer property from real (100 per cent taxable) to personal property (50 per cent taxable) classification.

Will Force Home Taxes Up

This ruling, he said, will force higher tax rates on home owners and benefit only those best able to afford a heavy tax load—the large corporations.

Adding to complaints from Lorain county officials and Cuyahoga county auditor John A. Zangerle, Metzenbaum agreed the ruling meant virtual bankruptcy for local governments.

Under Ohio law, Metzenbaum went on, personal property since 1932 has been taxed on the basis of 50 per cent of its value if it is used in manufacturing, 70 per cent of its value if it is used by a merchant. "But real property owners are obligated to pay taxes on the basis of their property's true value," he said.

11 ARABS DIE WHEN JEWS EXPLODE TRUCK

By The Associated Press

HAIFA, Palestine, March 3 — A dynamite-laden truck which police said was planted by the Jewish underground Stern Gang exploded in an Arab residential district today, killing 11 Arabs and wounding 27.

The police announcement said "many children" were included in the casualties. The explosion occurred near the central police station.

The blast wrecked the seven-story Salameh building and shook the whole Haifi port area.

CZECH AMBASSADOR QUITS TO FIGHT REDS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 3—Czech ambassador Juraj Slavik resigned his post today to "fight for a free Czechoslovakia."

Slavik announced that he is sending his formal resignation to the new Communist-led government at Prague.

At a news conference, Slavik said he was convinced that Dr. Eduard Benes, Czechoslovak president, was under "duress and terror" when he agreed to formation of the new Communist government.

The envoy did not say what he proposes to do in his "fight for a free Czechoslovakia."

But, he said, "I am confident I don't stand alone."

Slavik told reporters:

"I know there will be more of my colleagues who will act as I do now. There will be Czechoslovak patriots who will fight for our ideals of freedom. The great majority of our people in Czechoslovakia have these ideals."

VATICAN DECREE ON VOTING HITS AT REDS

By The Associated Press

VATICAN CITY, March 3—The sacred consistorial congregation of the Roman Catholic church issued a decree today informing Catholics that they may vote only for candidates who will "respect and defend the rights of the church."

Vatican sources said the decree applies to Catholics throughout the world. Pope Pius XII himself serves as prefect of this congregation. Its members include Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York and James Cardinal McGuigan of Toronto.

Throughout Italy Catholic prelates, following the lead of Alfredo Ildefonso Cardinal Schuster, immediately made clear that the decree precluded a vote by Catholics for Communist or extreme left candidates. The consistorial congregation is the high legislative and administrative body of the church.

A pastoral letter by Cardinal Schuster two weeks ago ordered priests in his diocese to refuse absolution to Communists.

The Cardinal's letter also warned Catholics that a vote for Communist candidates was "gravely illicit for the faithful."

from neighboring countries on the north.

They said that economic recovery in Greece depends on first wiping out the guerrilla resistance.

Marshall and Forrestal both said, too, that Turkey is under foreign pressure and needs continued help if her people are to be assured of keeping their independence.

Forrestal stressed the strategic military importance of Greece and Turkey.

"In addition," he said, "the loss of Greece and Turkey as free and independent states would have a demoralizing impact on other countries which are struggling to maintain their freedoms under most difficult conditions. The consequences of a display of weakness on our part in this critical area are beyond calculation."

Doctor Pleased With 24½ Pounds Lost By Lima Lady
"I gained weight after my children were born," writes Mrs. J. W. Stalter, 728 S. Union St., Lima, Ohio, "and after taking Rennel I lost 24½ lbs. It did not interfere with the care my Doctor was giving me, in fact he is pleased with the results for I can eat regular meals now."
Hundreds of others have gotten similar relief from the social and physical discomfort of being overweight. Rennel is the original grapefruit juice recipe for taking off ugly fat. It's simple. Just go to your druggist and ask for 4 ounces of liquid Rennel. Pour the contents into a pint bottle—add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take just two tablespoonfuls a day. That's all there is to it. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the simple, easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves—if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't just seem to disappear almost like magic from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles; just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer for your money back. You need never know a hungry moment while taking Rennel—no starvation diet—no printed diet to buy—no vitamins to fortify you against weakness while going hungry for you WON'T be hungry. Don't be switched to another product. Insist on and obtain genuine Rennel.

BAN ON GAS HEATING MAY BE RELEASED

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 3—The state ban on gas furnaces in new housing may be lifted as a result of a public hearing held by the state utilities commission.

The commission called for further testimony today on a proposal to modify its order curtailing use of fuel gas.

At the hearing yesterday, officials of three big companies said they would go along with the commission to permit gas heating plants in new housing.

They failed to agree, however, on whether the ban should be lifted on conversion burners in old housing.

J. French Robinson, president of the East Ohio Gas Co., said he favored lifting the ban on gas heating plants for new housing. He also recommended allowing an equal number of conversion burners in old housing to take care of hardship cases.

C. T. Weaver, president of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., suggested that the commission open up new housing now for gas furnaces, but wait until fall before considering lifting the ban on conversion units.

Thomas H. Nichols, law director at Canton, told the commission that the East Ohio Fuel Gas Co. had failed to take all the gas available from the Canton field.

The company's president testified, however, "we have taken all the gas we possibly can from the Canton field under present conditions."

GOV. FOLSOM NAMED IN PATERNITY SUIT

By The Associated Press

CULLMAN, Ala., March 3—An Alabama court was asked today to declare Gov. James E. Folsom the lawful husband of a red-haired, 30-year-old divorcee and the father of her baby boy.

Two suits filed in circuit court charged Folsom was the common law husband of Christine Putman Folsom, and the father of her son, 22-month-old James Douglas.

One petition was filed by the mother, who said she also is known as Mrs. Christine Johnston. Friends said she divorced Johnston several years ago.

The other suit was by the child, acting through a "next friend," Carter E. Putman. He is Mrs. Johnston's brother.

Folsom, a six foot, eight inch widower with two children, was enroute to Washington when the suits were filed. He is 39.

A colorful and vigorous campaigner, Folsom is a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Mrs. Johnston formerly was employed in a Birmingham hotel. Friends described her as an attractive red-head.

Mrs. Johnston's suit asked the court for three specific decrees:

1. To declare James E. Folsom and Christine Putman Johnston "lawfully intermarried by a common law marriage."

2. To declare the child born "as a result of that lawful wedlock."

3. To declare the child the son of Folsom.

Mrs. Johnston in her suit alleged that she and Folsom had lived as man and wife in Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky and Florida. She charged further that Folsom introduced her to his mother and others as the "next first lady of Alabama."

The governor, she asserted in the suit, underwent a "change of heart" after his election in 1946. The child was born in Nashville, Tenn., on April 17, 1946 and later was taken to Michigan until the Democratic primaries were over, the petition states.

Folsom was nominated in primary elections in May and June of 1946.

Mrs. Johnston asked no money in the suit.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Putman of Hanceville, Ala., 12 miles south of Cullman. Her father is a farmer.

Folsom's late wife died in 1944. She left two daughters, Rachael, 8, and Melissa, 6, who accompanied Folsom on some of his stumping campaigns in the race for governor.

Folsom Blames Politics

WASHINGTON, March 3—Gov. James E. Folsom of Alabama, today blames politics for the filing of court suits naming him as the father of a 30-year-old divorcee's baby son.

The governor, here for a congressional hearing, told reporters: "I am in a political campaign in Alabama. I have had to face this type of tactics in other campaigns. That is all I have to say on that subject."

TO VOTE ON TIME CHANGE

ASHTABULA, O., March 3—A proposed charter amendment establishing daylight saving time here will be voted on in the May 4 primary.

Hummel in an United Press dispatch from Columbus. Mr. Patrick, whose home is on the Gooding pike, succeeds George Thomas of Prospect as a member of the board. Mr. Lauer, a resident of Prospect, was reappointed. Both men, chosen by their local executive committees earlier this year, took over their offices this week.

Named to boards in nearby counties were: H. S. Siegel of Bucyrus, (R) and L. T. Kinett, Bucyrus (D), Crawford county; Mrs. Frances Shaw of Delaware, (R) and Fred C. At a reorganization meeting of the Marion county board this week Harod E. Cark was renamed chairman, Kenneth Freds, cerk, and Mrs. Nora Petter, deputy clerk. Other members of the board are Mrs. Cora B. Rexroth, Mr. Patrick and Mr. Lauer.

Jolson's Surprise Broadcast Opening Calls Attention To Program 'Warm-Up'

By International News Service

NEW YORK, March 3 — When a radio broadcast comes on the air with the studio audience laughing, even the most innocent listener may suspect something has just happened

He thinks the comedian has just made a funny remark

He doesn't know the half of it The comedian's pants may have fallen down Or a dozen other things may have happened possibly involving the efforts of several stooges in the audience

It's all part of what's known in radio as "the warm-up"—a pre-broadcast entertainment designed to put the studio audience in a happy mood and get the show off to a good start.

They Come in Variety

A farm-up can be simple or elaborate. The simple one might consist of a few jokes, told by the comedian The elaborate one, usually put on before big Hollywood broadcasts may be the real thrill of a 45-minute variety show

When Al Jolson recently was heard telling his audience at the opening of his broadcast, "If you don't laugh, get the hell out of here," he was finishing the warm-up

Unfortunately, he misjudged the time and the microphone was opened during the last remark That happens every once in a while—often enough to give network officials a headache.

Changed at Wrong Time

For Jolson, it was a peculiar coincidence. He usually finishes his warm-up with the phrase, "You ain't heard nothing yet" On this occasion he changed it, and probably wishes he hadn't

Different stars have their own routines for the warm-up Fred Allen, for example, may talk about the wonders of Radio City and its inhabitants Some of them, he says, have been wandering around its subterranean passages since the place was built and have never seen the light of day

Edgar Bergen exchanges gags with Charlie McCarthy Red Skelton really knocks himself out with acrobatics and pantomime The jokesters on "Can You Top This" tell jokes

Ralph Edwards, whose "Truth or Consequences" show is a madhouse, takes the place apart during the warm-up Stooges wander across the stage and through the audience in a sort of Olsen and Johnson routine.

ROTARY CLUB HEARS STATE FARM HEAD

Farnsworth Discusses Ohio Agricultural Department.

Frank Farnsworth of Columbus director of the Ohio state board of agriculture, discussed the work of his department when he spoke at the weekly meeting of the Rotary club at Hotel Harding Tuesday

Mr Farnsworth called attention to the standing of Ohio in comparison with other states as far as its agriculture and industry are concerned He said Ohio has great importance because of its strategic position, connecting the agricultural west and the industrial east.

He explained the organization of the board and the duties, responsibilities, and accomplishments of each of the various divisions He referred to the animal industry division as one of the most important, since it provides 72 per cent of the entire income of the board

Also under this division comes the group that controls diseases in farm animals Mr. Farnsworth said, "his group has made an amazing record in reducing diseases of farm animals from 50 per cent to 1 per cent." He discussed the dreaded hoof and mouth disease that once hit this country and told of its present existence in Mexico The United States sent men to Mexico to aid in controlling spread of the dread disease and prevent its entering our own country.

Mr Farnsworth expressed appreciation for the fine cooperation that Marion county has given the board.

Guests of the club were Eugene B Willey, a Rotarian and former Marion resident, now living at Stuttgart, Ark, M Glockner of Gloversville, N Y, Larry Reed of Akron and Charles Wiant of Marion

The student reporter was Virginia Price from the class of journalism at Harding High school.

New York Stock Quotations

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 3—The stock market followed a narrowly irregular course in a slow session today.

Price changes were well mixed in moderately active opening, but dealings contracted sharply as some industrial leaders slipped into lower ground Near noonday fractional changes in either direction were the rule.

Carriers continued to benefit from dividend and earning news. Modest bidding was attributed by brokers for a spring rally and to optimism over evidences of a somewhat broader list of stocks in demand in recent sessions. Caution persisted, however, because of concern over wage demands profit prospects and the extent of tax revision

Depressed at times were Bethlehem, U S Steel Chrysler, Kennecott, Douglas Aircraft, U S Gypsum, American Tobacco, Atlantic Gulf & West Indies Western Union and Goodrich S. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) Railroad common and preferred rumbled again in response to dividend prospects Others included Firestone, Cerro de Pasco, Pacific Western Oil J I. TAX TIME

ate for 1948 Required ome Income Tax Payers of 10 stories on who ost about his income

MES MARLOW

TON, March 3 — the income tax dead-

ho must make a final pay in full any tax n their 1947 income e, when they've done ave anything further March 15, 1949, when on their 1946 taxes. ecause most people $5,000 and full 1948 withheld from wages under $5,000 in 1946.

eople also by March st file an estimate on ax and start paying four installments on

That's because several million people won't have the full tax—or any tax — withheld from them in 1948. The reason is:

James Marlow

They'll make over $5,000 or will have the kind of income from which tax is not withheld. So, to repeat—

By March 15, 1948, they must file an estimate on their 1948 tax and make the first of four payments on the difference between the tax withheld (if any) and the estimated full tax for 1948.

Those three other payments are due June 15 and Sept. 15 of this year and Jan. 15, 1949.

You're one of these people:

1. If your 1948 income from wages or salary will be more than $5,000, plus $500 for each exemption besides your own.

Example: You're married. Your salary will be $5,500. Full 1948 tax is withheld up to $5,000, plus each exemption except your own. You claim a $500 exemption for your wife. You don't have to file an estimate.

Example: You're married and have one child. Your 1948 salary will be $9,000. In your case full tax is withheld up to $6,000 because of those two $500 exemptions for your wife and child.

You'll have to file an estimate and start paying the difference between the tax withheld up to $6,000 and the full tax due on $9,000.

2. If you expect to have $500 or more income from which no tax is withheld—such as a doctor with fees or a landlord with rents—you'll have to file an estimate on your total 1948 income and the tax on it and start paying the tax.

3. If you'll have income of more than $100 from which no tax is withheld—in addition to income from which tax is withheld—and if the two incomes total $500 or more—you'll have to file an estimate and make the first payment on the difference between the tax withheld and the full tax due.

Example: You'll make $4,500 in wages from which tax is withheld but you'll get an additional $101 from lecturing or renting a room or doing some service.

SUPPOSE HUSBAND and wife both have incomes large enough to require an estimate. Then both must file an estumate, separately or jointly.

Then, at the end of 1948, they can decide whether they want to make their final return for the year jointly or separately.

Say you don't have to file an estimate now. But suppose you find later in the year that you do because of income changes or other reasons. In such a case you can file an estimate by the next payment date: June 15, Sept. 15, Jan. 15, 1948.

Suppose a person files an estimate by March 15 and later in 1948 finds he's underestimated. What does he do? He doesn't have to do anything unless he finds he's underestimated by more than 20 per cent.

If he's underestimated by less than 20 per cent, he can pay in full in 1949 when he makes his final return on 1948 income.

But if he's underestimated by more than 20 per cent, he must correct it by the time he makes the next payment, June 15, Sept. 15 or Jan. 15, 1949, by filing a revised estimate.

FARMERS DON'T HAVE to make an estimate on 1948 income or make any payment until Jan 15, 1949.

But remember this:

This year congress may reduce the tax on 1948 income. That's maybe. Right now you must obey the law and, as explained here, file an estimate, if you should.

As explained, you'll be able to change your estimate later if congress reduces 1948 taxes.

If your tax is reduced, and you've overestimated, you can correct it downward when you make your next quarterly payment by changing your estimate.

Keep this information if you're going to file an estimate because the information won't be repeated in the next article explanation of how to file an estimate.

Next: How to file an estimated tax return.

Ravenna Airport Plans Hit Snag in Council

By The Associated Press

RAVENNA, O., March 3—Hopes for a municipal airport here took a nose dive today after repeal by city council of legislation approving a $50,000 bond issue for the airport and establishment of an airport commission.

The councilmen contended when voters approved the bond issue three years ago, city-owned land at Muzzey lake had been chosen as a site, but that site was later ruled out by civil aeronautics officials because of fog conditions.

GLASS CO. EXECUTIVE ADDRESSES FOREMEN

115 Hear Discussion of Management Problems.

Cloyd S. Steinmetz, director of training for the Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. of Toledo, spoke to about 115 members of the Marion Foremen's club on the subject "Dab Management" at a meeting Tuesday night in Columbian hall.

Mr. Steinmetz explained that by "dab" management he means incomplete management, when foremen or other executives only "dab around" at directing and managing employes in the right way. He explained that the foremen's job is careful planning and cooperation with employes, and that the foremen's personal opinions should not enter into his management. He added that foremen and executives should judge employes on their ability, not on their past history and experiences.

In his present position, Mr. Steinmetz is in charge of the development and supervision of job, managerial and office training programs, as well as programs of vocational screenings, counseling, interviewing and employe induction. He also directs the vocational service bureaus operated at the company plants located in Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Kansas, and at the home office. Mr. Steinmetz is a graduate of Ohio State university in business administration.

A social hour followed the meeting.

MINISTERS DISCUSS HOLY WEEK EVENTS

County Group Holds Meeting at Y.M.C.A.

Two events for Holy week were discussed at a meeting of the Marion County Ministerial association Monday at the Y.M.C.A. On Wednesday afternoon, March 24, a counseling clinic for ministers will be held at the Y under direction of Dr. Hazen G. Werner of Drew theological seminary. He will be in Marion for the week conducting special services at Epworth Methodist church.

The annual union Good Friday service March 26 will be held in Epworth Methodist church with pastors of the various churches taking part. Theme of the service will be the seven last sayings of Christ on the cross.

Discussion was continued from previous meetings on the code standard of requirements being formulated for ministers to consider in regard to couples who come to them to be married. The committee in charge includes Rev. Eldred Johnston, Dr. Edwin A. Brown and Rev. E. W. Guinther of Prospect. The group gave a vote of appreciation for the "Go to Church" advertising which has been put up in Marion, and commended Rev. J. B. Holloway and Dr. Brown on their appearance before city council at the recent session which considered a change of closing hours for taverns.

Rev. Henry Maag distributed Sunday school attendance census cards which were signed by children of the first six grades in Marion schools during the last week. He reported that 3,400 cards were distributed, with 2,940 returned, among which were 580 listing no Sunday school attendance at any church.

Sees President Assails Approval Morgenthau Plan

By CORDELL HULL

(c, 1946, by North American Newspaper Alliance)

INSTALLMENT XXXIII

MORGENTHAU returned to Washington from Que- the President went first to Hyde Park, where Prime chill paid him a visit. Morgenthau was wildly en- r what he had accomplished, and came rushing to War Stimson and me and others with the latest copies (for converting Germany into a primarily pastoral or's note).

meeting of the cabinet committee in my office on 4) to go over these developments, with Morgenthau Harry White of the istant Secretary of and H. Freeman he state department, ide no effort to hide n at what the Pres- Churchill, at Mor- istence, had agreed I considered it a tragedy for all concerned. I emphasized that I did not regard the matter as closed.

Morgenthau said that the President's invitation to him to go to Quebec had been a complete surprise to him, and he did not want people to think he had engineered it. He then went into a long explanation of what had happened at Quebec. He said that Mr. Churchill had at first been violently opposed to the policy toward Germany which Morgenthau had advocated. The prime minister had bluntly inquired whether he had been brought over to Quebec to discuss a scheme that would mean "England's being chained to a dead body" (Germany).

Morgenthau turned to Stimson and said, in effect: He was even more angry than you, Harry. Stimson had been as angered as I was over Morgenthau's high-handed procedure in conducting negotiations at Quebec on a matter of primary concern to the state and war departments, without consultation with us, and he made no effort to conceal the fact.

MORGENTHAU SAID he then took up the subject with Lord Cherwell, personal assistant to the prime minister, and apparently convinced him. Cherwell discussed it with Churchill and won him over. The proposal apparently appealed to the prime minister on the grounds that Britain would thus acquire many of Germany's iron and steel markets and thus eliminate a dangerous competitor. Morgenthau said they then made several attempts to put the understanding on paper, none of which pleased the prime minister, who thereupon called in his secretary and dictated his understanding of what had been agreed to. This was the document initialed by the President and the prime minister and telegraphed to me on Sept. 15. Morgenthau said it was drafted entirely by Mr. Churchill.

Stimson asked Morgenthau point-blank whether there had been any connection between Churchill's acceptance of this policy and his eagerness to obtain the credits which Morgenthau was offering him. Morgenthau answered no, but he said that the credits were clearly the prime minister's principal non-military objectives at Quebec.

The following day, Morgenthau said, Foreign Secretary Eden arrived at Quebec and became very much upset at the agreement reached by the President and the prime minister concerning Germany. Eden had a heated discussion with Mr. Churchill, who instructed him not to take it up in the war cabinet until the Prime Minister returned, for he was bent on pushing it through.

Morgenthau said he was surprised at Eden's opposition, since he had gained a contrary impression when he talked with Eden in London a short time before. This statement disclosed to us that the secretary of the treasury, even prior to Quebec, had been discussing with British officials a matter of primary concern to the state and war departments.

AS FOR THE CREDITS side of the picture, Morgenthau said he had found the President prepared to accept the prime minister's views without question, but that he, Morgenthau, had insisted that a committee be set up to work out the project. Morgenthau himself did not seem to feel that the committee would be any too effective in obtaining British cooperation toward liberal economic policy, but he felt that at least it gave us a foot in the door. He said that the President had not raised any question as to what economic policy the British should pursue in return for our assistance.

Without cushioning my words, I said I was acutely shocked at the way such vital matters had been settled without any consultation with the appropriate experts of our government and without any regard for the policy we had been trying to pursue in the past.

Shortly after the President returned to Washingt on I went to see him at the White House. I took his memorandum of Sept. 15 and the Morgenthau plan with me. (The Sept. 15 memorandum set forth that the President and Mr. Churchill had agreed on the substance of the Morgenthau proposal.—(Editor's Note.)

ANTHONY EDEN

Foreign secretary had a heated discussion with Churchill.

I said bluntly to the President that Morgenthau's plan was out of all reason, and that no experts, no appropriate officials of our government or the President, and no other governments had had anything to do with its preparation. Morgenthau's plan, I added, would wipe out everything in Germany except land, and the Germans would have to live on the land. This meant that only 60 per cent of the German population could support themselves on German land, and the other 40 per cent would die.

I REMARKED that with regard to the postwar treatment of Germany I would bear in mind two controlling points. The first was that Germany should be kept under military control for 25 or 50 years, as necessity might require, until she experienced an absolute change of heart away from all theories and notions of Nazism and the absurd idea that Germans were a superior race and had a right to govern other races. The second was that the standard of living of the German population should be kept below the average of neighboring populations but should be raised gradually in proportion to the rate of change on their part away from Nazism, racial superiority, and the like, toward ideas of human rights, individual liberty, freedom and peace.

I concluded that I was satisfied that the British at Quebec had joined in on this extreme starvation plan in order to get Morgenthau's help in obtaining the six an a half billion dollar credit proposad by the secretary of the treasury. I particularly inveighed against this credit.

For one reason, I said, negotiations with Britain should be conducted primarily through the state department, the organ of the administration set up to negotiate with foreign governments. For another reason, Morgenthau's proposal had attached to it no conditions whatever. There were numerous questions pending between us and Great Britain on which we should seek settlement or action, and the credits would be needed as a part of our bargaining position with Britain. Morgenthau had brushed aside or ignored these considerations, and made an unconditioned offering of six and a half billion dollars without consulting any appropriate official of the government either in the state department or in congress.

I concluded that, apart from all the other serious objections, if Morgenthau's proposals became known and the President were connected with them, it would greatly injure him politically. He was then in the midst of the 1944 presidential campaign.

THE PRESIDENT SAID very little during this conversation except to indicate that he had not actually committed himself to Morgenthau's proposals. In fact, he did not seem to realize the devastating nature of the memorandum of Sept. 15 to which he had put his "OK FDR."

I now asked my associates at the state department to assist me in preparing a further memorandum for the President. This, dated Sept. 29, I handed to him personally on Oct. 1, and went over its major points with him.

The following day I received from the President a memorandum he had written me on Sept. 29, that is, before my talk with him on Oct. 1. It clearly revealed that he had not realized the extent to which, at Morgenthau's urging, he had committed himself at Quebec.

"The real nub of the situation," he wrote, "is to keep Britain from going into complete bankruptcy at the end of the war." This last sentence he emphasized by inking a double line alongside it.

The press during the last week had come out with a number of articles indicating the drastic nature of the postwar treatment of Germany discussed at Quebec. This furnished Nazi propaganda agencies with wonderful ammunition to spur the Germans on to fight to the end.

"Somebody," the President said in his memorandum, "has been talking not only out of turn to the papers or (sic) on facts which are not fundamentally true.

"No one wants to make Germany a wholly agricultural nation again, and yet somebody down the line has handed this out to the press. I wish we could catch and chastise him."

(Secretary Stimson later informed me that the President thought the news leak had occurred in the state department. By showing the President the article of a columnist who first came out with the story and who was in close contact with certain officials in the treasury, Stimson said he convinced the President that the leak had not occurred in the state or war departments).

"YOU KNOW," the President continued, "that before the war Germany was not only building up war manufacture, but was also building up enough of a foreign trade to finance rearming sufficiently and still maintain enough international credit to keep out of international bankruptcy.

"I just cannot go along with the idea of seeing the British Empire collapse financially, and Germany at the same time building up a potential rearmament machine to make another war possible in 20 years. Mere inspection of plants will not prevent that.

"But no one wants 'complete eradication of German industrial productive capacity in the Ruhr and Saar.'

"It is possible, however, in those two particular areas to enforce rather complete controls. Also, it must not be forgotten that outside of the Ruhr and Saar, Germany has many other (he underlined other) areas and facilities for turning out large exports."

Turning to Russia, apropos of my insistence that the Soviet government must be consulted regarding any plan for Germany he said:

"In regard to the Soviet government, it is true that we have no idea as yet what they have in mind, but we have to remember that in their occupied territory they will do more or less as they wish. We cannot afford to get into a position of merely recording protests on our part unless there is some chance of some of the protests being heeded.

"I do not intend by this to break off or delay negotiations with the Soviet government over lend-lease either on the control basis or on the proposed Fourth Protocol basis. This, however, does not immediately concern the German industrial future."

MY CONVERSATION with the President on Oct. 1 had obviated the need to take any action on his memorandum. This latter showed me, however, the line of thought he had been pursuing. In his mind the future of Britain was linked inversely with the future of Germany. Britain needed to get back her export trade after the war, but he felt that she could not do so if Germany were permitted to develop an extensive export trade in competition. Therefore he embraced Morgenthau's plan. But he forgot, despite Churchill's initialing of the agreement, that the British government was the last to desire the conversion of Germany into a pastoral country, because Britain's livelihood would be impaired if Europe's economy collapsed because of a wrecked Germany.

The President's memorandum also showed plainly that he had not understood the meaning of what he had agreed to at Quebec. At about this time Secretary Stimson had a talk with the President, from which Stimson drew the same conclusion. He informed me that he had thereupon read to the President several sentences from the President's memorandum of Sept. 15, concluding with the phrase, "looking forward to converting Germany into a country primarily agricultural and pastoral in its character."

Stimson informed me that the President was frankly staggered at hearing these sentences and said that he had no idea how he could have initialed the memorandum and that he had evidently done so without much thought.

IN ANY EVENT, the President, after my conversation with him, ceased to embrace Morgenthau's ideas on Germany. Three weeks after my memorandum of Sept. 29 he sent me a reply dated Oct. 20 which he began by saying: "I think it is all very well for us to make all kinds of preparations for the treatment of Germany but there are some matters in regard to such treatment that lead me to believe that speed on these matters is not an essential at the present moment. It may be in a week, or it may be in a month, or it may be several months hence. I dislike making detailed plans for a country which we do not yet occupy."

He said he agreed with our proposals for the de-militarization of Germany and suggested they include everything having to do with aircraft. He was "in hearty agreement" with our proposals for the dissolution of the Nazi party and its affiliated organizations, and for extensive controls over communications, press, and propaganda. He agreed with our suggestion that no decision should be taken on the possible partition of Germany. With regard to our section on economic objectives, he said: "I should like to discuss this with the state department in regard to some of the language. I agree with it in principle, but I do not know what part of it means. Much of this sub-head is dependent on what we and the Allies find when we get into Germany—and we are not there yet."

THE IDEAS my associates and I had stated in the memoranda of Sept. 4 and 29, to which the war department generally subscribed, and to which Britain and Russia later agreed, became to some degree those that were carried out when Germany was occupied. Nevertheless, Morgenthau did not cease to press his philosophy of crushing Germany to the dust, and his ideas had an adverse effect on the Allied program for that country, resulting in a more drastic plan than what we had in mind at the state department prior to my resignation. The experience of several years' occupation of Germany, however, coupled with a realization of the validity of our argument that Germany's economy was interconnected with that of Europe, eventually required the American and British governments to move away from that philosophy.

My talk with the President on Oct. 1 was my last important item of business in his office. I was now on the verge of the collapse that necessitated my resignation.

Guests present were R. B. Lahr, J. Tischer, R. A. Gibson, Harold J. Blosser, all of Galion, and A. C. Ballentine, a member of the Mansfield Rotary club.

RADNOR CLASS MEETS

Special February observances were the program theme when the R.F.D. class of the Radnor Baptist church met last week at the home of Mrs. Everett Baxter. Mrs. Fred Bosh was devotional leader. A sketch on the life of Washington was read by Mrs. William Griffiths, an article on St. Valentine was given by Mrs. Sidney Gray, and Mrs. Walter Penry read a sketch on Lincoln. THE Irish will be riding a jinx in their game today with Sunbury in the Class B district tourney at Westerville . . . By virtue of their splendid season record, they were seeded in the drawings held in Westerville, Bremen, and Fredericktown . . . And last year, three of the four seeded teams were bumped out of the tournament in the first game . . . The fourth team was booted out in its second tilt . . . That's a pretty tough jinx, but the Irish can beat it if they play the ball they've displayed in most of their games this season . . . They lost to Sunbury earlier in the season, but the Irish feel they had an off night then, and could take the Delaware county champs another time . . . . They'll have their chance this afternoon.

YOU MAY BE sure the driver of the bus, that takes the Irish down today will honk his horn while driving under the railroad underpass just north of Delaware on routes 23 . . . That's a rite St. Mary follows every year . . . Brings them luck—except when the opposition is luckier . . . Last year the Irish advanced to the finals and were beaten out in an overtime by Columbus Rosary . . . They should have honked twice.

THE CLASS B tourney was split into two groups, and out of them will emerge two winners . . . St. Mary and Bremen are the two strong teams in one bracket, and Marysville and Fredericktown are the powers in the other . . . The Irish, therefore, don't have to meet the Monarchs again this year.

CALEDONIA started out on the tournament trail in a big way, dropping Delaware St. Mary, 72-30 . . . County scoring ace Kenny Comstock slipped in 29 points during the time he was in the game.

IT WAS TOUGH when the Prexies drew Columbus Central for their opponent in the first round of the Class A play at the Fairgrounds Coliseum, but now they have had it rubbed in . . . Dick Clark and Don Johnson will be sidelined with injuries—Clark with the flue and Johnson with a sprained ankle . . . They'll meet the Columbus champs, tourney favorite along with Newark, on the Coliseum boards tomorrow night at 9:45 p. m., in the last game of the day's play . . . The Pirates have won 21 and lost but a single game this season.

SINCE THE CENTRAL District Class A tourneys started in 1923, Columbus Central has won the championship five times . . . Only Newark has walked off with more titles—six . . . Again this year, one of these two powers is favored to cop the title . . . Newark is the only school outside of Columbus and suburbs that has won the title . . . Marion has advanced to the finals a number of times, but hasn't yet taken the trophy.

Caledonia Drops Delaware St. Mary, 72-30, in Tourney

Richwood Eliminates Pleasantville; Irish, Pleasant, Morral Enter Today

Caledonia's Donians and Richwood's Tigers won initial victories in the district class B tournament at Westerville last night, the Donians more than doubling the score on hapless Delaware St. Mary, 72-30, and the Tigers, in a tougher contest, eliminating Pleasantville's cagers, 53-46.

In class B action today, Marion St. Mary goes against Sunbury at 4 p. m.; Pleasant takes on Mt. Gilead at 5; and Morral runs into London at 8 p. m.

Marion Harding plays their first tournament game tomorrow at 9:45 p. m. when they meet Columbus Central in the fairgrounds coliseum in Columbus.

Comstock Nets 29

The Donians, paced by Kenny Comstock who made a total of 29 points in the first three quarters and retired to the bench in the fourth, were never in trouble as they jumped to a 13-6 first period lead, added 20 in the second, 20 in the third and 19 in the final frame.

They played flawless defensive ball throughout the game and were exceptionally tight in the first two periods when they allowed only eight points while posting 33 on their side of the scoreboard.

Leading by a score of 53-24 going into the last period the Donian reserve forces entered the game and carried on where the varsity left off, hitting for 19 points and holding the Delaware cagers to a minimum of six tallies.

Richwood's Tigers started fast against the Pleasantville Panthers with a 10-2 lead in the first minutes of the game but Pleasantville, playing a slow game, kept trying and at the end of the first period settled for a 15-15 deadlock. Both teams added nine in the second quarter to take the half-time rest all tied up, 24-24.

Tigers Come Back

Pleasantville led by a score of 36-34 midway in the third quarter, but the Tigers came back to take the lead, outscoring the Panther crew by four points in the third and three, 12-9, in the final.

Caledonia will engage Brown at 5 p. m. Thursday in their second game. Richwood will meet Marengo an hour later.

Other Games

In other games at Westerville yesterday, Danville eliminated Columbus Holy Family, 57 to 36, Marengo ousted Raymond, 66 to 29, and Brown Township beat Saltcreek, 44-36.

On the fairgrounds coliseum hardwoods in the class A tourney, Newark dumped Upper Arlington, defending district champs, 57 to 31, and Aquinas eliminated Mt. Vernon, 56 to 45.

Newark came from behind in the second period to take the lead they held all the way out.

Aquinas had a tougher time with Mt. Vernon, who trailed the Irish by but one point going into the last frame, but Tom Poliseno dumped in three quick fielders that put the Columbus team in front. He rounded out the evening with a big 26 points.

2 Tribe Teams Picked For Intrasquad Play

By The Associated Press

TUCSON, Ariz., March 3—Manager Lou Boudreau picked two teams for the Cleveland Indians' first intrasquad game today, but denied either represented a tentative starting lineup for Saturday's exhibition opener with the New York Giants.

"I want to take a good look at squad (A) because they are our potentials," Lou said, "but, of course, we will not overlook (B). There is no starting lineup yet."

Here's the way Boudreau lined up the two teams:

A—Mitchell, lf; Boone, ss; Edwards, rf; Robinson, 1b; Judnich, cf; Gordon, 2b; Keltner, 3b; Hegan, c; Klieman and Garcia, p.

B—Tucker, cf; Ratto, ss; Clark, lf; Seerey, rf; Fletcher, 1b; Bearardino, 2b; Rosen, 3b; Tipton, c; Lemon and Gettel, p.

Third baseman Ken Keltner, who claims to be in his best condition of the last six years, belted two balls over the Randolph Field fence yesterday. Eddie Robinson, first sacker, also slammed two out of the park.

HARDIN GRANGE TOURNEY SET TO START SATURDAY

Special to The Star

KENTON, March 3 — The Hardin county Grange league double elimination basketball tournament will get under way Saturday evening, March 6, and will continue on Saturday and Tuesday evenings through March 20.

Four of the toughest teams in the loop were paired in the first round. Goshen and Maple Grange teams will tangle and Friendship will meet Lawrence Valley, Wolf Creek, Painter Creek, McDonald, Pleasant Hill and Greenwood Granges also will participate.

MELMORE JUNIORS WIN

The Melmore Junior High school basketball team won the Seneca county championship and was awarded a cup Saturday night at the high school finals at Old Fort. The team is coached by Rev. W. A. Hewitt, pastor of the Sycamore Methodist charge. The Melmore team has won 21 of 23 games played and will enter the Lykens invitational tournament March 8 against Bloomville.

Lambs born to sheep which have not had enough iodine have a high death rate.

PREXIES TO ENGAGE CENTRAL TOMORROW

Dick Clark, Don Johnson on Injured List.

Marion Harding's Prexies, will head toward the Capitol City tomorrow night to engage the Central Pirates, Columbus city loop champions and second seeded team, on the Coliseum maples at the Fairgrounds in the fourth game of a four game program in the Central District Class A tournament.

Having drawn a toughie in the first game, the Presidents have had the situation aggravated by sickness and injury to two of the first ten.

Dick Clark, bedfast with a case of flu, and Don Johnson, hampered by a sprained ankle incurred in a practice session, will be unable to travel with the squad.

The Prexies, a little apprehensive about playing on a large court, will enter the fray with the hopes of maintaining the shooting accuracy attained in the Bellevue game, plus an interchangeable zone and man-for-man defense, and enough optimism to spring an up-set on the favored Central champs. This is not a boast, just a hope.

Opening the contest for the evening, with an hour and fifteen minutes allotted for each game, Newark against Aquinas at 6 p. m.; Bexley vs. Columbus East, 7:15; St. Charles vs. North, 8:30; and Marion Harding vs. Central, 9:45.

Officials for the Central District Class A tournament are Joel Burghalter, Charles Koterba, Stanton Jones, and Lowell Wrigley; admission at the gate only, 75 cents.

Quite a Trick To Shove Out Reds' Auggie Galan

By The Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla., March 3—Hank Sauer will turn quite a trick if he realizes his ambition to play left field for the Cincinnati Reds.

The fellow he must shove aside is Augie Galan, a top notch major league performer while Big Hank was still in high school.

And, at 35, Galan still is at the top. Last season, his 14th in the big show, he hit 314—fifth in the National league—and batted in 61 runs.

Sauer claimed all eyes as he made his debut in the Reds' 1948 training camp here yesterday. He slammed a half-dozen balls over the fence. Everybody, players and spectators alike, cheered as he proceeded to slam Bucky Walters' easy pitches out of the park.

Big Hank is up for his fourth trial with the Cincinnati club. Sloppy fielding caused his return to the minors on three previous occasions. Yesterday, however, he laid down his big bat and went into the garden to demonstrate he can chase fly balls with the best of them.

Galan isn't worried. If he can't play left field, he can play either of the others. He can also play an infield position, except shortstop.

Muncie Seeks To Beat Last Year's 3rd Place Finish

The Muncie Reds, holder of the third place spot in the 1947 Ohio-Indiana league race, are making every effort to better last year's effort in the approaching season. The Reds will have six holdovers from their 1947 squad, five of whom are pitchers. Mike Blazo will be at the helm of the club again this year.

Kenneth Lanning, whose record was 3-2, Ed Moeller, 4-4, and Ray Trava, 1-2, will furnish Blazo some good right handed material to build around. Also returning will be two hurlers whom the Reds optioned out last year. Southpaw Larry Miller went to Lockport in the Pony league where he notched an 8-4 record, including a one-hit effort. Returning from Warsaw in the Tobacco State league will be right hander Harold Ensley who had an impressive 9-4 record during the past season.

Little Billy Ford will return to battle with newcomer John Raynor for the third base spot. Ford was a .278 hitter last year. Of last year's team, outfielders Don Kirby and Francis Shank, and second baseman Howard Locke have retired from the game.

Opponents of the league will be spared from the fate of facing the the Post brothers on the mound in the future. Eddie Post was drafted by the Boston Braves, while younger brother Walter is on the Reds' Columbia, S. C., club. With Walter Post at Columbia will be shortstop Tom Florence and first baseman Leonard Lamont. Right fielder Bob Montag, who was the league's leading home run smacker, was drafted by Evansville.

Ten new players have already been signed by business manager Jack Meyers, including three catchers, five pitchers, one infielder, and one outfielder.

The Rockford Rox, Cincinnati's farm club in the Central Association, also will train at Muncie. Both clubs will begin training April 12 under the direction of Buzz Boyle, Cincinnati scout, Cy Pfeifer, Rockford's manager, and Mike Blazo.

ST. MARY MEETS SUNBURY TODAY

Pleasant Will Play Mt. Gilead; Morral vs. London.

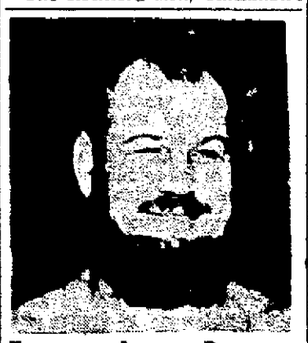
Marion St. Mary opens the play in the Central District Class B basketball tournament today opposing Sunbury in the Otterbein college gym at Westerville at 4 p. m.

Mt. Gilead and Pleasant tangle in the second game at 5 p. m., and Morral takes on London at 8 tonight.

St. Mary's Irish will carry a season's record of 17-4, and a half share in the Mid-State league championship with them when they tangle with Sunbury; Morral was invited by virtue of its runner-up standing in the Marion county tournament; and Pleasant earned the right to participate by winning the county consolation crown.

Mt. Gilead and St. Mary are exempted entrants.

All games will be played on the Otterbein college hardwoods. Officials are W. K. Dunton, Bus McMillin, Clayton Hockman, Gene Mechling, Jim Hull and Jack Landrum. Tickets will be sold at the gate only and the admission charge is 75 cents.



Former Jones Returns in Winner Take All

It looks like a hot time at the armory Thursday night when Farmer Jones gives Red Lyons a return match, winner take all. Last Thursday Lyons raised a lot of "fuss" when the Farmer won by slugging Lyons when he thought he had won the match but the Farmer's foot was caught in the ropes. Right away Red wanted a return match even if he had to go to the Commission to get it, and he felt so much that he could beat the Farmer he wanted a winner-take-all bout. Well, he didn't have to go to the Commission for the Farmer agreed to the match at once, saying, "Well, I'll get double money that match." All in all, it should be quite a match for both wrestlers have "blood" in their eyes.

It will be a double main event card with both matches two out of three falls. The other main event should turn out to be a fast, clever match such as a lot of Marion fans have enjoyed in the past month for it brings in a new boy from New York, Al Alexander, who has been heading shows in the east and this will be his first match this far west. Al comes with a "rep" of being along the lines of Jackie Nichols. His opponent will be the young Canadian, Bill Murray, who has made a host of friends here.

The ten-minute prelim to this all star card will be the Barlow brothers, a couple of paperweights, at 8:30. Prices (all taxes paid) 50 cents, 75 cents and $1.00. Call Markert and Lewis early for your seats.—Adv.

Slugging Giants Aim To Bea Their Mark of 221 Homer

By The Associated Press

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 3—Festooning a finger of Johnny M and each of his New York Giants teammates is a large hunk of ring bearing the magic number "221" in bold, raised figures.

The boys are proud of the rings, which President Horace S ham had quarried especially for them after they belted more home runs last year than anyone in baseball had thought possible.

Their 221 blasts into and over the stands shattered the previous big league record of 182 set by the Yankees of 1936, which had been considered unassailable.

Now the members of the same wrecking crew are talking openly of going onward and upward during the coming campaign—of hitting maybe 250 four-masters and setting a mark which will remain forever beyond the reach of mortal ball players.

Can Buy More Rings

Stoneham is game: "I'm in shape," he declared, "and I feel confident I can go on buying rings with high numbers as long as the boys keep their strength."

So far as can be told at this point, there seems no valid reason why the Giants of 1948, still playing half their games in the Polo Grounds, should not crack at least as many homers as they did last season.

They will have the same siege guns they had last year—Mize Walker Cooper, Willard Marshall, Bobby Thomson—and they might even have added some distance hitting. The only question is: where do you reach the absolute ultimate in homerun production?

No Homer Ceiling

The Giants sluggers do not concede there is any such "ceiling." Mize, who clobbered 51 last year, feels he at least has a chance of beating the figure. Cooper, who hit 35, Marshall, 36, Thomson, 29, all feel the same.

If this fearsome quartet can escape injury and come thr with another 151 between them team total of 250 would not pear entirely beyond reach

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY

By AP Newsfeatures

WILLIAM GREEN, born March 3, 1873, has been president of the American Federation of Labor since 1924. A coal miner, like his father, he was thwarted in a youthful ambition to become a Baptist preacher. He turned to union work. He was international secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers and in 1912, advanced to the executive council of AFL. John L. Lewis backed his election as president.

One Man's Opinion

By WALTER KIERNAN

Gov. Dewey is being heard in several states this week by transcription . . . Apparently he expects to get the nomination on a platter.

But he figures that if Crosby can work weeks ahead of audience time so can he . . . The only thing is, he shouldn't get his acceptance speech ready too early.

A transcription also is a very clever way of getting a northern Republican voice over the Dixie border . . . The record goes in labeled "Can't you hear me calling Carolinas?"

Meanwhile we have stepped up our Voice of America broadcasts to Czechoslovakia but it doesn't look as though radio ever will replace the old fashioned fifth column.

The Czechs now get a solid hour of the American viewpoint . . . That leaves 23 for Moscow monologs.

They have been promised time of their own when something opens up. The way Stalin left it was "Don't call us . . . We'll call you."
